Enforcing Law
Surprise for Trotzky
Let Them Combine
Why Tie Our Hands?

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

IRVINGTON, New Jersey, decided to enforce old blue laws that forbid worldly occupations on the Sabbath." At 5 p. m., 120 persons had been arrested, including six reporters, tied up for taking notes; motormen and others.

GOLF theaters, movies, any sport or business activity, are against the law. To enforce it occasionally and see how people feel is wise.

How long would prohibition last if it were as hard for the big man to get his champagne as it is for the little man to get his beer?

MR. FORD'S weekly paper says: "He (the Jew) controls the revolutionary elements of the world, on one hand, and the ultra-conservative elements on the others; so he has equal power in communistic Russia and in capitalistic England."

THAT will be news to Trotzky, the only conspicuous Jew in the Russian government, from whom his powers have recently been taken one by one. Mr. Ford also prints: "The international Jew is in direct control of all financial centers of government, including the United States Federal Reserve System."

Secretary Mellon and Mr. Strong of the Reserve Bank, will learn something here.

The four richest men in the world are Rockefeller, Ford himself, Mellon and George F. Baker—according to those that should know. The Rothschilds compared with them are only a small bank. The Jews have evidently shown great moderation, controlling finance, but letting "Goyim" have the real money.

ONE great financial house which Henry Ford sincerely considers a Jewish institution, using Christians for a false front, actually will not give employment to any Jew.

MR. LOREE, of the Delaware & Hudson, has acquired a big interest in the Lehigh Valley Railroad, with an eye to future mergers. There ought to be ONE railroad merger, including all roads, bought at a fair price and owned by Uncle Sam. But that won't happen until Uncle Sam has more influence than the railroads.

BUT mergers that would stop waste, send freights the shortest, most economical way, cut down overhead, etc., should be encouraged, especially by farmers.

Let the roads earn enough to satisfy the owners, then, perhaps, you will get lower rates.

SENATORS discuss the suggestion that this country stop experiments with poison gas, binding itself irrevocably against its use in war.

CANNOT the United States be trusted with poison gases? Are we going to send asphyxiating expeditions against our neighbors? Isn't it the height of folly to say that we must BE IGNORANT OF THIS MODE OF WARFARE?

SHOULD we not know all about it, keep ahead of all others, in case others should start war against us and make gas a part of it?

An angry ship officer told an old Chinese sailor who bothered him, "Go by yourself to the mast." The poor sailor obeyed orders and nearly froze. Uncle Sam shouldn't tie himself up, but keep free, in every direction, prepared to meet any deviltry that may come.

CYRUS H. K. Curtis's young men tell you in big type on his front page what you read here in small type the other day, that one big automobile concern will spend $20,000,000 in advertising this year.

That is true, according to present plans, and it's an intelligent plan. The time to swim hard is when the current is against you, and the time to advertise hard is when sales are not so good.

NO automobile concern has ever overadvertised. "Repetition is Reputation." Every day there are a million men and women thinking they want their first car, a new car, or a better car. The intelligent manufacturer should talk to them every day.

REPRESENTATIVE Dempsey, of New York, says we should risk "an unfriendly alliance" if we joined Canada to build a canal to the ocean via the St. Lawrence.

WE do not mistrust Canada, and the closer we come to her the better. But this country is big enough to build its own canal, across the state of New York, an entirely American canal.

That is what the nation wants; that is what Secretary Hoover advises, even if it does cost a little more. If there is anything that we can't really AFFORD, please mention it.

One year's excess income would build the canal twice.

KASCHOLK SAYS "PAT" PHONED 'LAST WARNING'

State's Star Witness Tells of Conversation with McDermott in Hotel

BARES BROKEN ROMANCE

Nanty Glo Miner's Testimony Ruled Admissible After Terrific Legal Battle

Courthouse, Canton, Dec. 14—A broken romance of a deserted wife and baby and a "love nest" was bared by Steve Kascholk, the state's star witness, in its case against Patrick E. McDermott, on trial in connection with the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, during his cross-examination here today.

Kascholk, without the slightest bit of apparent reserve, admitted his secret life with Mary Chernisky, a Nanty Glo, Pa., girl, and admitted that she was the mother of two of his children.

STEVE KASCHOLK

Their names, he said, were Mary, aged one, and three-year-old Steve. Before that point in the testimony had been reached however, Kascholk, under direct cross examination, declared that MDermott had told him while they were in a hotel here previous to the murder, that he "was going out and telephone a guy and give him his last warning."

This point had never before been brought out in any of the informer's statements, and had not been touched upon by the defense in cross-examination when court recessed at noon.

Kascholk admitted that he had been indicted several times as a result of his matrimonial affairs and that he had spent five months in a Pennsylvania jail before going to Cleveland on June 30.

You were indicted as a result of this affair with Mary, and again for deserting and non-support of your wife and baby?" he was asked by Everett Mills, conducting the cross-examination.

"Yes sir," answered the unmoved witness.

"You pleaded guilty?"

"Yes sir."

"Have you ever since tried to support your wife and legitimate child?"

"Well, I sent the child $15 as soon as I got out of that Pennsylvania jail," he answered.

"But how about your wife?"

Money from M'Clintock

"I said that I tried to support the child," Kascholk retorted.

"And have you sent them any money

OHIO BELL VALUATION FIXED AT $112,342,375

Chicago Appraisal Engineer on Stand at Utilities Commission Hearing

Columbus, Dec. 14—Fixing a valuation of $112,342,375 upon the properties of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. for rate making purposes, W. J. Hagenah, Chicago appraisal engineer, today resumed his testimony at the hearing being conducted by the State Utilities Commission relative to its statewide investigation of the telephone rate situation.

Hagenah's valuation is approximately $30,000,000 lower than the appraisals determined by expert engineers employed by the company.

Hagenah recently completed an examination of the telephone properties throughout Ohio on behalf of the state. Direct testimony submitted to the commission by the Ohio Bell Co. during the present probe includes the following valuations of the company's properties:

By C. B. Williams, Columbus, $142,219,716; W. F. Sloan, Chicago, $140,336,436. Williams and Sloan were employed by the company as appraisal engineers.

HOGAN PLEADS FOR ACQUITTAL OF OIL KING

Supreme Gesture of Fall-Doheny Defense Featured by Lashing Verbal Attack

POMERENE BILLED

Ohioan Scheduled To Make Government's Final Appeal for Conviction

Washington, Dec. 14—The defense today made its supreme gesture for the acquittal of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and E. L. Doheny, charged with fraudulently wresting oil lands of untold value from their government.

Following an appeal for conviction, by Owen J. Roberts, Frank J. Hogan, defense ace, noted for his ability to sway a jury, took the floor.

He launched into an attack on Roberts, the government counsel.

"Gentlemen," he said, "you have just listened to as wholesale and vicious a villification as ever polluted the atmosphere of a courtroom.

"You have heard it from the lips of a man made desperate—made desperate by th fact that in the past week he has seen his flimsy case collapse before him. You have seen him hopelessly trying to rebuild it from the shreds by his own oratory."

An "invisible witness" was flayed today by Roberts, special oil counsel for the government, as he completed his final argument demanding conviction.

This "silent man" was described as J. J. Cotter, Doheny attorney and former secretary to Franklin Lane, secretary of the interior under President Wilson.

Atlee Pomerene and Frederic Kellogg will close the trial respectively for government and defense.

FILE TAX APPEAL

Court Directs Approval of Levy for Hamilton Expenses

Columbus, Dec. 14—Appeal was filed today in the State Supreme Court from the judgment of the Butler County Appellate Court which directed that the budget commission of that county approve a special tax levy for city expenses at Hamilton.

The appeal was filed by Harry J. Long, county auditor; Stanley J. Kinzer, county treasurer, and Prosecuting Attorney H. B. Bohn, comprising the budget commission.

After the commission failed to include the proposed levy in its budget, the Common Pleas Court ordered the commission to approve it. The Appellate Court reversed the Common Pleas.

COUNCIL TABLES REALTORS' WARD PLAN PROTEST

Action Construed as Definite Refusal To Reconsider Redistricting Arrangement

TEST SUIT INTIMATED

Real Estate Board Claims Council's Plan Illegal; Wards Not Equal, Claim

That City Council has no intention of reconsidering or revising the ward redistricting plan adopted several weeks ago was indicated last night when a protest against the new ward boundaries filed by the Marion Real Estate Board was promptly tabled by a unanimous vote.

This action was taken by Council without discussion, a motion to table the protest "indefinitely" being made immediately after the clerk had read a resolution filed by the Real Estate board.

Whether local realtors or other business men who have voiced objections to the redistricting plan will continue their fight will not be known until Thursday night, when Council meets in adjourned session to complete proceedings begun last night. It is possible that representatives of the objectors will be on hand to state their views and urge a change in the ward boundaries.

Irregularity of the line which divides the present Third and Fourth Wards into four wards is the main basis of protests. This division is made in an ordinance adopted several weeks ago to become effective Jan. 1 unless Council voluntarily amends it or legal action is taken by citizens who have filed protests.

Illegal, Claim

A prominent member of the Real Estate Board recently asserted that the redistricting plan adopted by council is illegal because of unequal distribution of population. A survey has shown that the number of voters in two of the new wards will be only about a third of the number in other wards. This arrangement, it is claimed, is clearly a violation of the intent of the law relating to ward divisions. Equal repre-

WOULD INVESTIGATE HENRY FORD'S CHARGES

Jewish Control Allegation Without Fact Foundation, Representative Believes

Washington, Dec. 14—An investigation of Henry Ford's charges against Jewish financial control was proposed in the house today by Representative Bloom, Democrat, of New York.

He alleged Ford had charged that "the international Jew" controls all financial centers of the government, including the federal reserve system.

Referring to the controversy between Ford and Nathan Strauss, of New York, Bloom asked a committee of seven be named to go into all phases of the matter and report to the house.

"I believe the accusations made against the federal reserve system are without foundation in fact," said Bloom.

Shipping Board Offers Five American Line Ships For $1,000,000

Washington, Dec. 14—The Shipping Board is willing to sell for $1,000,000 the five ships of the American merchant line which were built during the war at a cost of $17,500,000, W. K. The vessels are among the finest now being operated in merchant service, Teller said.

The committee is attempting to block sale or lease of the Merchant and United States line, which included the Leviathan.

COMMERCIAL AVIATION SHOWING RAPID GROWTH

Washington, Dec. 14 — Growth of commercial aviation has been so rapid this year that the government will have more than 10,000 miles of airways in operation by Dec. 31, it was announced today by Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

Congress is to be asked for an additional appropriation of $4,000,000 to extend lighting and radio facilities along the routes, Hoover said.

Temperature in Marion Drops 44 Degrees in 10 Hours; More Cold is Due Tonight; Midwest Suffering

MERCURY HERE HITS LOWEST MARK OF YEAR

Slight Fall of Snow and High Winds Accompany Drop in Glass

16 DEGREES RECORDED

Wednesday Scheduled To Be Cloudy with No Great Rise in Temperature

Forcing the mercury down 44 degrees in ten hours, the cold wave from the west struck Marion last night, bringing a slight fall of snow, and high winds with it.

The temperature yesterday, shortly afternoon, marked a high record of 60. Last night it dropped to 16 degrees above, the coldest so far this year, and a total drop of 44 degrees.

Fair and Colder

Fair and colde is the prediction for tonight. The mercury will drop a few more degrees, but not enough to cause alarm. Wednesday is scheduled to be cloudy, but with no great rise in the temperature.

A year ago the temperature was 37 degrees during the day and dropped to 21 degrees above at night, not as much of a drop as was recorded this year when the cold wave hit.

Throughout the northwest the thermometers were away below zero yesterday, and Marion got its share of this sudden drop in the temperature, spreading slowly throughout the east.

MINIMUM OF 10 DEGREES TONIGHT

Columbus, Dec. 14—Forecast of a minimum temperature throughout Ohio tonight of 10 degrees above zero was made this afternoon at the local U. S. Weather Bureau.

Weather Bureau officials here expect the temperature to register about 15 degrees above Wednesday with the thermometer ranging from 12 to 15 degrees above Wednesday night.

INCREASE EXPECTED IN 1927 CHRISTMAS CHECKS

Early Reports Indicate Number of Depositors Will Be Greater Next Year

Following distribution of Christmas savings checks amounting to approximately $143,000 last week, local banks and one of the local building and loan associations which operate this holiday savings feature are now enrolling depositors for 1927.

The 1927 accounts were opened immediately after checks for this year were mailed out and there are indications that total deposits will be larger than ever, bankers report. The fund this year was the largest in the history of Christmas savings business here, despite the fact that industrial conditions were below the average.

With prospects of increased factory operations here in 1927 and with general improvement in all lines of business, bankers are confident that not only Christmas savings but all other classes of deposits will mount to unprecedented figures during the year.

SAYS OHIO FARMERS NOT SUFFERING DEPRESSION

NOVEMBER BRISK MONTH IN MAYOR HAZEN'S COURT

Report Shows He Collected $1,354.75 in Fines and License Fees

Business was brisk in the court of Mayor Earl M. Hazen, last month, according to his report filed last night with City Council, showing that collection of fines and license fees totaled $1,354.75, one of the largest monthly collections of the year.

The fines, amounting to $1,200.50, were levied mostly against dry law and traffic code violators. Receipts from sale of building permits amounted to $10, from licenses $22, and $1.25 from registration fees.

The mayor's court collections during this year have averaged about $1,100 monthly, the records show and this revenue has been of valuable aid in financing various municipal departments.

When the Municipal Court begins operating on Jan. 1, all revenue from fines will go into the safety fund, instead of the General fund, as has been the custom in the past.

CHICAGO POOR UNPREPARED FOR ZERO COLD

Entire Middle West Held in Icy Grip of Terrific Blizzard

ABANDON MAIL FLIGHTS

Lowest Temperature Reported from Wilder, Mont., with Mercury at 31

Chicago, Dec. 14—Untold suffering was caused today by the severe cold wave that holds Chicago and the middle west in its icy grip.

The paralyzing blizzard rode in on frigid winds from the northwest that sent the mercury down from 51 degrees at 7 o'clock yesterday morning to three below zero at dawn today.

Zero temperatures are general over the northern middle section of the United States and Canada. North and South Dakota and Minnesota are the hardest hit. A blizzard of major proportions blowing in from Alaska swept over those states and extended into the adjoining states of Montana, Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan.

31 Degrees Below

Although 15 deaths have been attributed to the cold wave, only two are known to have been caused directly by exposure. The others were the result of accidents of various kinds, principally automobile smashups incidental to the blizzard.

The lowest temperature was reported from Wilder, Mont., where the mercury touched 31 degrees below zero, Devils Lake, N. D., reported 25 below. The sub-zero line extended south to the Minnesota-Iowa boundary.

Heavy blankets of snow cover the affected area. The furious gales drifted the snow into railroad cuts and highways and tied up traffic in many sections. Air mail pilots were forced to abandon many scheduled trips. Transcontinental flights were halted at Omaha.

Keen suffering was reported among the poor in Chicago. The drop in temperature was so sudden that many were caught unprepared. Officials were preparing today to cope with the situation to prevent, if possible, any loss of life.

Orders Relief

A. E. Sinclair, in charge of relief work, has issued orders for six emergency relief stations to remain open day and night and to have adequate stocks of food, fuel and clothing to dispense to the poor and needy.

Shippers were warned to protect shipments passing through Chicago from temperatures ranging from five to 20 below zero. The cold wave will continue for the next two days, the weather forecast indicated today.

20 TO 35 DEGREES BELOW IN MINNESOTA

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 14 — The cold wave continued unabated today. Temperatures in Minnesota and Dakotas ranged from 20 below zero to 35 below in some sections of Montana.

RELIEF PROMISED IN COLORADO

Denver, Colo., Dec. 14—Relief was promised today from the most severe cold wave that has gripped the Rocky Mountain region in more than two years.

Temperatures ranging from five to 25 below zero prevailed in sections of northern Colorado, Wyoming and Montana. In Denver a low record of 11 below was recorded this morning.

Five deaths in Denver were attributed indirectly to the Arctic weather.

"Best Paper In Ohio" One Reader Tells Star While Another Says "You Never Get Things Printed Right"

FROM every section of the city questionnaires are coming back to The Star. Readers are apparently anxious to voice their views on "What features do you like best in The Star?"

Last week every Marion reader of the paper was given a questionnaire, on which was listed the complete lineup of features which The Star carries throughout the week. In addition readers were asked their opinions of local and telegraph news, news from other towns, and remarks as to the general impression given the reader by the paper, from front page headlines to want ads.

More than 3,000 questionnaires have been returned so far, and others still are to come in. A preliminary survey of these questionnaires shows that they have been carefully filled out in nearly all cases. The readers, to judge from the questionnaires returned, went over the questions carefully, with a view to giving their honest opinions on the quality of news and features.

Pats vs. Brickbats

Many of the readers who returned the questionnaires commented in some way or other on the paper in general at the bottom of the blank. Some of these comments are compliments and some are little short of "brick bats".

These comments range all the way from the man who said, "Taken as a whole there is no better small town paper in Ohio," to the woman who said,

"You never get things printed right. Always some mistakes."

First a boost and then a slam.

There were many more comments gleaned from the questionnaires in a preliminary survey of them. Many excellent suggestions were made by readers as to the features they would like to see in the paper.

A careful check of these questionnaires will be made as soon as all are returned in, and the tabulation of the votes on the various features will give a good idea of the popularity of each type of news and each feature printed in The Star.

That news of all types must be carried by a newspaper to appeal to every type of reader is readily shown by the questionnaires turned in so far. For instance one questionnaire carried the comment,

"Print more correspondence from nearby towns."

And the very next questionnaire picked up had the comment,

"Too much correspondence

Analyst Foresees 1927 as Year of Healthy Busines

DEPRESSION TO BE MODERATE, HE DECLARES

Will Be Healthful Rather Than Harmful, Declares John Moody

New York, Dec. 14—How'll business be in 1927?

Active, healthy—without flare of either boom or panic!

Such is the gist of a forecast made by John Moody, eminent analyst who has been keeping the closest touch on the pulse of business conditions the world over for more than 30 years.

His answer to this question of universal interest is couched in the carefully selected words of the conscientious expert who rather would say too little than too much, for fear of being misinterpreted.

Such care has made Moody a leader in his field. He is president of the Moody's Investors Service, which furnishes expert reports and advice to banks, bankers, business men and investors. He travels frequently to study the foreign situation and is in close touch with most of the financial problems both at home and abroad.

Moderate Depression

"All the fundamental evidences point," he says, "to the possibility that 1927 will be an active business year with relatively healthy underlying conditions, but there will be no boom or inflation in either industry or finance.

"It is entirely possible that the first six months of the year will register a moderate business depression. But because of the soundness of credit conditions and the absence of over-extended inventories and liabilities, such a slowing up in business should not have any disastrous effects. As a matter of fact, its main effects should be healthy.

"During the broadening out of financial and business activities during the last year, there has been constant danger that the period of prosperity through which we have been passing would develop into an unhealthy boom. A moderate slowing up general business, however, will remove all danger of over-expansion.

Credit Conditions

"If, as is expected, business activities slow up to some extent throughout the country during the first half of 1927, credit conditions will remain sound and interest rates will tend to drop to a lower level.

"The country as a whole is still enormously equipped with liquid capital, and in spite of tremendous absorption in securities which has been going on since 1924, there still is available an almost unlimited supply of investment funds.

"During the past two years this country has invested each year between one billion and two billion dollars in foreign lands, and yet the supply of investment capital has been by no means exhausted.

"One of the constructive factors which is going far to maintain the easy credit conditions in this country is the steady recovery of Europe and the increasing flow of funds from Europe and other foreign lands to the United States. This is one of the important and profound effects of the changed relationship of the United States with the rest of the world.

Money Flows From Europe

"Whereas prior to the World War the United States was a debtor nation and found it necessary to export to Europe many hundred thousands of dollars in interest on loans and investments and in profits each year, today exactly the reverse condition is taking place.

"As a creditor nation, the United States no longer is obliged to export large sums to Europe in settlement of its borrowings, but receives large and ever-growing sums from Europe in settlement of, and on account of, its loans.

"It is this factor, which is each year growing more important, which tends to assure a permanent supply of available capital to the United States, even in times of unsettlemint and doubt."

CHARGE NEWARK MAYOR WITH SOLICITING BRIBES

Stevens at Liberty Under $10,000 Bond; Stenographer Held as Witness

Newark, Dec. 14—Mayor W. H. N. Stevens was at liberty under $10,000 bond here today, following his arraignment last night on charges of soliciting bribes and carrying concealed weapons at which he entered pleas of not guilty to both charges.

Miss Margaret N. Flowers, the mayor's stenographer, also was held under $1,000 bond as a material witness. She is said to have given a written statement to Prosecutor J. D. McNamara, in which she charged the mayor solicited bribes in connection with the recent letting of contracts for the city's traffic signal light system. The bribes are alleged to have been solicited from salesmen of the American Light Co., of Zanesville, and of the Tokheim Oil Pump Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.

The affidavits were sworn to by M. I. Holmes, former city safety director, and the center of a political feud with the mayor.

SIX MORE INDICTMENTS EXPECTED IN CLEVELAND

District Attorney's Office Asserts Seized Bootleg Liquor Used at Parties

Cleveland, Dec. 14.— In Cuyahoga County's latest scandal, involving alleged conspiracies among justices of the peace, their liquor raiders and several mayors, was amplified today when word seeped from U. S. District Attorney A. E. Bernsteen's office that at least six more indictments would be forthcoming when the grand jury reconvenes Dec. 20.

The government's campaign against justices who brought bootleggers into their courts and then diverted the fines and made no records of the cases, now is being directed toward persons connected with the county jail, city hall, the new courthouse and central police station.

Bernsteen's agents are said to have evidence that many of the 39 persons already indicted and others, against whom charges are pending, "threw parties" for officials of the city and county, at which liquor seized from bootleggers was served.

Ex-Police Chief Writes Confessions, Stirs Seattle

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 14—William B. Severyns, former police chief of Seattle, has stirred up a hornet's nest in this city with his book, "Confessions of a Chief of Police, or the Inside Story of a Wide-Open Town." For several weeks a special King county grand jury has been in session investigating alleged graft, corruption, and bribery scandals charged in Severyns' book and the inquiry will be continued well into next year, Prosecutor Ewing D. Colvin promises.

Severyns was chief four years, under Mayor Edwin J. Brown. Brown lost his campaign for a third term in June when Mrs. Martha E. Landes, Seattle's first woman mayor, was elected on a reform platform.

Severyns charges in this book that Patrolman Charles O. Legate's mysterious death in an underworld garage in 1922 was not a suicide as decided at a coroner's inquest at the time. His statement "I think I know the man or men who murdered Legate," first resulted in the calling of the grand jury to investigate the old murder mystery. Severyn's assertion that he was offered $99,000 for the post of head of the dry squad when he was appointed chief also is a topic of grand jury investigation.

A word to the WIVES—

For every pipe-smoker on your list

AT THIS season, when you are being urged on every hand to "Give this" and "Give that," be assured of this truth: Nothing you could give a pipe-smoker could make more of a hit than a generous supply of Prince Albert . . . mild, mellow, fragrant Prince Albert.

Here, for instance, is the crystal-glass humidor, all dolled up in holiday clothes. It contains a full pound of P. A.—the grandest tobacco that ever lined the bowl of a pipe. There's a little sponge in the top of the humidor to keep the tobacco "just right."

Every pipe-smoker on your list would be tickled to death to find this good-looking package among his gifts on Christmas morning. It will brighten the Big Day for him and furnish deep-down pipe-joy for the days that follow. The Prince Albert humidor, by all means!

This prime favorite of experienced smokers also comes in pound and half-pound tins. At the nearest shop, you will find Prince Albert in sizes to suit every purse and purpose. If he smokes a pipe, your Christmas problem is settled . . . and settled satisfactorily.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT

—no other tobacco is like it!

PENNSYLVANIA WORKMEN PLAN YULE PARTIES

Seventeen Family Gatherings Arranged for More Important Points on Western Region

Seventeen Pennsylvania Railroad Company parties, scheduled for the important points over the Western Region, will bring employes and their families together on the night of Thursday, Dec. 23, for the greatest Yuletide celebration ever held on the Pennsy lines west of Pittsburg.

The Western Region series of parties will be linked with a score of other parties in the Eastern and Central regions by radio, when Pres. W. W. Atterbury will broadcast a Christmas greeting from Philadelphia.

Although employes at local points will stage their own Christmas affairs, the celebration in reality will become a system celebration through the radio. Station WJZ, New York, will broadcast a half hour of the Philadelphia program from 9:30 to 10 o'clock. President Atterbury will voice his greeting over the air during this program.

On KDKA

For the benefit of many who may be unable to obtain WJZ on the radio, the message will be relayed through KDKA, Pittsburgh, and KYW, Chicago. Radio receiving sets, with loud speakers, will be installed at all points where celebrations have been planned to allow the merrymakers to listen to the address and then go on with their regular party plans.

Many local Pennsy employes may journey to Columbus to take part in the program while it is possible that others will go to Springfield or Crestline.

Arrangements for the big Columbus Christmas party, to be held in the employes' club rooms, 58 E. Gay-st, on the night of Dec. 23, are nearing completion. It is planned to have a big "sing," using familiar Christmas carols, and an enjoyable musical program, with numbers by the Columbus division male chorus and double quartet, as well as vocal and instrumental solos

At Springfield the entertainment will consist of a small chorus, a mixed quartet, solos and community singing. The arrangements are in charge of A. N. Noble, freight agent.

Other Ohio Pennsy Christmas parties will be held in Cincinnati, Lancaster, Middletown, Dayton, Xenia, Crestline and Zanesville.

Derail Installed

A derail has been installed on the Erie tracks leading to the Mansfield reformatory. The derail is placed about 25 feet inside the Reformatory gate.

Rods Frozen

Rods controlling the valve on the water crane of one Erie locomotive were frozen a few days ago as a result of the fireman allowing the tank to overflow. A bulletin warning against permitting the water to flow over the sides of the tanks has been posted in local offices.

New Switch Lamps

Several new switch lamps have been installed on the Erie tracks in the vicinity of the Mansfield Rubber Co. plant.

John Zuck Returns

John Zuck, clerk in the office of T. A. Sparks, track supervisor of Hocking Valley tracks in this section, has returned from White Sulphur, W. Va., after spending a few days in that vicinity as the guest of the Hocking Valley and Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Magazine. The trip is given free to correspondents of the magazine. Mr. Zuck is Marion correspondent.

On Honor Roll

Samuel Jewell, operator at Peoria, O., a village located 23 miles southwest of this city, was placed on the Erie honor roll this month when he reported a car of wheat leaking. The report enabled the leak to be fixed and saved considerable loss.

Home-made Supply of Fine Cough Syrup

Better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this home-made syrup, easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup, or clarified honey, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the throat tickle and heals the irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and it is splendid for bronchitis, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and pulatable guaiacol, which has been used for generations to break severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

NINE TOWNSHIPS IN COUNTY HIT BY CORN BORER

Farm Authorities Say Every Section of County Will Be Invaded in 1927

The European corn borer, which began its work of destruction in Canada more than a decade ago and has since been moving relentlessly south across the United States, has invaded nine townships in Marion County and by this time next year, farm authorities predict, will be found in every section of the county.

Until this fall, only two townships, Grand and Tully, were included in Marion County's corn borer quarantine district. The latest bulletin from L. B. Worthley, federal administrator of European Corn Borer Control, received a few days ago by Rollin Leeper, secretary of the Marion County Farm Bureau, adds Big Island, Claridon, Marion, Montgomery, Grand Prairie, Salt Rock, and Scott townships to the list.

This means that the corn borer has invaded the entire north part of the county and provides basis for prediction that before another year has elapsed the pest will be at work throughout the entire county.

Federal Survey

These additions to the quarantine list have been made as a result of investigation made during the last few months by federal agents. These investigators were at work not only in Marion County but surrounding localities and it has discovered that the corn borer has also advanced into numerous townships in Morrow and Hardin Counties. These are included in the quarantine district extensions.

Accompanying the communication designating the enlarged quarantine territory was an official bulletin outlining quarantine regulations more restrictive than those which have been in force. In the future all shelled corn must be inspected and certified before being shipped to points outside quarantine areas. In the past, this rule has applied only to corn on the cob.

Shelled Corn

Until this year there was thought to be no danger in general distribution of shelled corn but investigation has shown that there is possibility of corn borer contamination from particles of the cob which frequently remain attached to the grains.

The bulletin stipulates that all shelled corn must be "absolutely clean and free from all parts of the cob."

"It will be necessary before shipping any shelled corn either in small or large quantities to points outside quarantine areas to make application for inspection and certification of same" the bulletin reads. "Corn on the cob is prohibited from shipment and no certification will be granted."

Applications for shelled corn shipments must be filed with E. G. Brewer, 2036 E. 22nd-st, Cleveland, district representative of the federal Corn Borer Control service, at least a week prior to the time of shipment.

Shelled corn may be moved between points inside the quarantine area without inspection, the federal officials announce.

Small Damage Here

Although the corn borer spread has been general throughout Marion County and surrounding territory, damage to crops in this section was not extensive during the last year, Mr. Leeper states.

Hardin County townships included in the new quarantine list are Cessna, Blanchard, Goshen, Jackson, Liberty, Pleasant and Washington and in Morrow County, the townships are Canaan, Cardington, Congress, Franklin, Gilead, N. Bloomfield, Perry, Troy and Washington

Agricultural experts have made progress in combatting the menace but the problem is still far from solution. One effective weapon in the warfare is a process of cutting corn close to the ground or removing the stalks completely, as it is the stalk which provides the borer with its seat of operations.

Republicans Like Address, Democrats Don't Like It

That's Way Correspondent Finds Senators After Presidential Message

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—"The most statesmanlike document congress has listened to in years."

The speaker is Charles Curtis of Kansas, Republican leader in the United States senate. He's describing President Coolidge's recent message to the national legislature, following the convening of the short session of 1926-7.

CHAS CURTIS

Curtis was re-elected senator in November on a platform which repudiated Coolidge policies in several essential respects. He's out of harmony with the administration in various important particulars. But, as senate Republican leader, part of his job's to go into raptures over that message and he goes into 'em, if it takes a leg.

"WEAK and wishy-washy, is the administration of today."

Joe Robinson of Arkansas leader of the senate Democrats, is criticizing the message, as spokesman for his political group.

Robinson's a Democrat but not an unaccommodating one. When something really important comes up that the administration forces can't put across without a few Democratic votes, it usually can get 'em from him. "It's a non-partisan question, after all," he says. In fact, he's helped to pull President Coolidge out of some mean holes.

But, as Democratic senate leader it's his business to be unable to see an honest or sensible paragraph in the latest presidential message and he can't, to save his life.

IT'S the same way all up and down the line.

Not a loyal Republican in congress can discern a flaw in a word the president had to say. Not a loyal Democrat can find a redeeming sentence in the whole message, from its very beginning to the signature at the end.

What's more, this isn't the first presidential message that Democrats have damned as "perfectly awful" and Republicans have praised as "perfectly grand," at one and the same time, or vice versa, depending on which party happened to be represented in the White House just then.

It's been the same way within the memory of the oldest member of either house of congress. Doubtless it began with George Washington's first term.

SENATOR HENRICK SHIPSTEAD is mightily kowtowed to just now.

The reason isn't far to seek. With the close party line-up in the 70th congress, Shipstead's vote will weigh like a ton of brick.

There will be 48 Republican senators, 47 Democrats and Shipstead, Farmer-Laborite.

If the Republicans can get Shipstead they'll have a majority. If the Democrats get him they'll have a tie. True, Vice President Dawes has a Republican vote to break ties.

But, in the first place, Dawes has a habit of slumbering at the switch. Finally, six of the Republicans—Lenroot and Blaine, Frazier and Nye, Norris and Brookhart—are insurgents of wholly undependable. There are two other doubtful ones, too.

Under the circumstances, Shipstead's vote—his very own, to dispose of as he wishes—is priceless to either side.

So Shipstead gets invitations to the White House, the president consults him, his wife is Mrs. Coolidge's guest and rival party leaders shower him with attentions on every hand. Won't he walk into their parlors, Mr. Fly?

The senator grins. "Oh, I take these things as just ordinary, perfunctory courtesies," he says. "I've no idea there's any ulterior motive back of 'em. I never let politics or religion and social activities mix, anyway."

spondence from other towns."

One reader would like to see more Marysville news, another would like to see street cars on Girard-av. A man comments that "too much prominence is given to local scandals," and another man says that there are "too many particulars in write ups of murders and burglaries. You are helping to educate recruits."

Several persons among the first questionnaires looked over spoke of the editorial page, and one woman wrote, "I like the way you commend people in your editorials, your absolute fairness to them." She would also like to see more nature features. In the same vein a man would like to see more financial news.

Local features and features from other sources are commended by one reader, who likes Arthur Brisbane's column and Frances Jennings' book review. This woman says:

Here's a Boost

"In general, the paper is very satisfactory, in our opinion."

Segregation of news is favored by some persons, who ask that certain items be kept together. One man says he and his family often miss local items because they are surrounded by other reading matter, and another adds that he would like to see "one class of news in one column, such as deaths and accidents." Another man says that the "news is scattered too much."

Probably no portion of the questionnaire was given more attention than that concerning the comics, and practically every questionnaire gone over so far was marked fully in the comic columns. Many of the persons who showed a dislike for any of the present comics mentioned those they would like to see used.

since you were in jail here?" Mills thundered.

"Yes—the children," the witness stated.

"How much?"

"About $150," was the answer.

"Where did you get it?" Mills followed.

"From Mr. McClintock, Kascholk answered.

"From Mr. McClintock?" shouted the defense attorney.

"Yes, sir."

"Oh, from Mr. McClintock," commented Mills as the crowd in the courtroom stirred.

"And did you send any to Mary?" Kascholk was asked.

"No, I never sent her any money. I sent it to the children," the quiet, neat-appearing coal miner and restaurant dish washer replied.

Pays for Tickets

It was brought out under cross-examination that Kascholk had drifted about Cleveland doing odd jobs in restaurants and factories and taking whatever other work he could find. He said he lived in four or five places while in Cleveland.

"When you came to Massillon with McDermott, who bought the tickets?" Mills questioned.

"We were sitting in the railroad station and I showed Pat a $10 bill—I guess I had a dollar in change, too—and Pat said: 'Go and get the tickets.'"

"And what was in your mind that caused you to change your name en-route to Massillon?" the defense counsel demanded.

"That Pennsylvania trouble," was Kascholk's reply.

The court then adjourned until 1 p. m.

During cross-examination this afternoon Mills demanded to know why Kascholk had come to Canton with a Cleveland attorney to tell his story in connection with the Mellett case.

Feared for Life

"Why did you come to Canton?" Mills asked.

"I had several reasons," was the answer.

"What was your purpose in going to an attorney in Cleveland?" Mills demanded.

Steve muttered an answer that could not be heard.

"You came to Canton because of that $10,000 reward, didn't you?" Mills shouted.

It was then that Kascholk declared he came here because he feared for his life.

After much questioning, the witness admitted that the "reward might have been one of the reasons for the trip here."

Letters written by Kascholk to Mary Chernisky, the sweetheart for whom he deserted his wife while held in the workhouse here as a witness in the Mellett case, were introduced by the defense at this point.

After a terrific legal battle over the admissibility of his testimony Kascholk related his story.

Immediately following a verbal tilt that had wound up the court session yesterday and which continued for nearly two hours this morning before the court ruled in favor of the state, Kascholk again took the stand.

Pat in Background

The defendant in the dramatic trial, dapper, slick, sheik, Patrick McDermott, was relegated into the back ground as the prosecution returned Steve to the stand today.

Defense counsel late yesterday contended that Prosecutor C. B. McClintock was not proceeding properly with his case, that prima facie evidence of a murder conspiracy should be offered before questions, apparently based upon the assumption of such a conspiracy, could be asked.

The defense also declared that it was their belief that the state would later show that Kascholk was, perhaps, a co-conspirator—for a short time, at least.

The prosecutor pointed out that no evidence tending to link Kascholk with the alleged "Mellett murder plot" had been offered and declared it would be "clearly shown that Kascholk never gave his hand to the commission of a criminal conspiracy."

Tells of Meeting

Yesterday, Kascholk told of his accidental meeting with Pat in Cleveland, told how they went to Massillon together about a week before the murder and then related that Pat told me that Rudner wanted us to do a job."

Ben Rudner and Louis Mazer were indicted with McDermott in connection with the Mellett murder.

It was at that point the arguments over the admissibility of the "informer's" testimony started.

Steve declared that about a week before the crime, Pat introduced him to a "Mr. Smith" in front of Ben Rudner's hardware store in Massillon.

"I got into a car with Mr. Smith, Pat and a big German police dog, and we drove to Canon," Steve said.

"We stopped in front of a hotel and Pat and I went in and got a room."

Pat Sits Motionless

"What happened then? asked McClintock.

"Pat showed me a revolver," he answered.

McDermott, looking tired and sleepless for the first time during his trial, had been sitting motionless throughout Kascholk's testimony. Steve then said that Pat told him "We'll get him—meaning the editor—to the door and I'll shove the gun into his ribs. Then we'll get him outside."

"We went out on a street car, looked the place over and went to a drugstore for a soda."

"This is a rotten business, Pat,' I told him," said Steve when relating details of his refusal to go through with the slugging of an editor.

Saw Mazer, Claim

The witness said he went to Cleveland and returned here on July 24 with an attorney of the Legal Aid Society there.

"Have you seen this 'Mr. Smith' since returning here from Cleveland?" McClintock asked.

"Yes, that was Mazer," he said.

"Where did you see Mazer?"

Steve replied that he had seen Louis Mazer, who with McDermott and Ben Rudner was indicted in connection with the Mellett murder, in United States Attorney A. E. Bernsteen's office in Cleveland.

"Have you seen the automobile you rode over here in that night?" he was asked.

"Yes, but I don't remember much about that," Steve said.

"Do you remember going some place with a Mr. Armstrong?" asked McClintock, referring to the Cincinnati detective who assisted Ora Slater, another Cincinnati private officer on the case.

Says Pat Has Nerve

"You mean in reference to the car," countered Steve.

"Yes," urged the prosecutor.

"I'm not clear on that auto," Steve insisted, and "could not remember," although the state pressed the question several times.

McClintock then retraced some of the original Kascholk testimony.

"When you went to Massillon, did you ever see Bed Rudner in the presence of Pat?" he axed.

"Yes," answered Steve, "and Rudner said: 'Pat has more nerve than any man that ever walked.'"

After introducing certain clothes which Steve said had been in a suitcase in his hotel room here, McClintock announced that he was temporarily through with the witness.

Cross-examination by Attorney Everett Mills was then started.

WARD PLAN FIGHT

sentation is absolutely essential, it is asserted.

This spokesman of the Real Estate Board intimated that should Council refuse to revise its plans, a test suit may be started in the local courts.

The resolution of the Real Estate Board, tabled by Council last night, urged that the new Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth wards extend from Center-st to the south corporation line with boundaries as nearly parallel as possible.

For boundaries running east and west the board recommended that the new Third ward extend from the west corporation line to either Davidson-st, the Hocking Valley railway or the Pennsylvania railway, the Fourth from the east line of the Third ward to Pearl, Prospect, Main or State-st, the Fifth from the east line of the Fourth ward to Summit-st or some other north and south thoroughfare which would provide the proper population, and the Sixth ward from the Fifth ward boundary to the east corporation line.

Seek Equalization

The primary purpose of the Real Estate Board's suggestions, the resolution stated, was to establish wards which would equalize population figures and to fix boundaries "in the interest of simplicity, to enable citizens to easily keep in mind the location of different wards and for greater convenience of city and county officials."

The ward redistricting ordinance was adopted to comply with an order from the office of the secretary of state. The number of wards in any municipality is based upon population and the 1920 census places Marion in the six-ward class. There are now four wards, two north of Center-st and two south. The First and Second wards, north of Center, are not changed by the redistricting ordinance.

Defend Plan

Members of Council defend the plan adopted on the grounds that the wards which would have small populations at the beginning are localities where most of the city's growth will be centered during future years. This situation, it is asserted, will finally adjust the discrepancy in population figures.

Three members of Council, R. E. Prettyman, Ralph H. Good and T. J. Mead, were unable to be present at last night's meeting because of other engagements. For this reason, action on legislation, including the Municipal Court clerk-hire ordinance, was carried over until the adjourned session to be held Thursday night.

Sessions are now being held in the office of Mayor Hazen, construction work in preparation for opening of the Municipal Court on Jan. 1 preventing use of the Council chamber.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE NEARING $1,000 MARK

Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs Makes Progress Report

Receipts in the Christmas Health Seal Sale sponsored by members of the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs almost reached the $1,000 mark today, it was announced.

In view of the fact that there are still about 1,200 seals out yet, and as the federation is held responsible for the entire amount, it is planned to send follow-up cards in the near future, in order to speed up the purchase or return of the little health stamps.

"We realize however, that most people have plenty of uses for their money at this season of the year, yet early response by those who have received the seals would greatly speed up the work of completing the sale," Mrs. John McNamara, health chairman of the federation stated today. "Although the seal sale ends officially on Christmas Day, payments for seals will be just as welcome after Christmas and will be just as useful in carrying on the health program in the schools sponsored by the federation," she said.

Sidewalk Parking.

Writing to the New York Times, a reader of that paper claims that there is just as much reason for the regulation of pedestrian traffic as for the regulation of vehicular traffic, and he holds that pedestrians have no more right to block the sidewalks than motorists have to block the paved streets. His recommendation is that the sidewalks be marked with white lines in the business sections, just as paved highways are marked, and that pedestrians be fined for not keeping to the right or for so congregating as to block traffic.

Our original inclination was to assume that the author of this communication to the Times was a motorist taking a sly poke at the pedestrians who have been sending communications to that paper regarding the regulation of motor traffic, but as we read on we were forced to the conclusion that he is not a motorist, but one of that fast-disappearing class to which we sometimes refer as the true aristocrats of the land. He manifestly is too greatly in earnest in regard to the rights of pedestrians to be a motorist, for motoriste, we very gravely fear, are inclined to deny that pedestrians have any rights. Of course, they would not hold to this as an abstract proposition, but hardly any other view is possible in the light of their practices.

Possibly there may be reason why sidewalks should be marked in great cities as indicated by the writer referred to, but in cities the size of Marion the need of such a step is far away. The great tendency here, we are glad to say, is to be considerate of others and keep to the right. There are exceptions, of course, but the general policy in Marion is thus to expedite pedestrian traffic.

But there is a marked failing into which too many of our people are prone to fall, and this is the tendency of many to stop for visits in the center of the sidewalk. Far too many fail to move to one side out of the way of traffic when they stop for a little discussion. It doesn't take many of such gatherings to block traffic considerably, particularly if a couple of baby carriages are involved. The sidewalks are for the use of the public, of course, but they are not intended for either social gatherings or family reunions. A little consideration for the rights and feelings of others in this regard will help wonderfully in keeping our sidewalks open for pedestrian traffic and prove mutually beneficial.

In a word, don't park on the sidewalks.

What Time Is Revealing.

Eight years have elapsed since the end of the Great war, and it is only now that we are getting some of the inside facts concerning it, getting a line on some of the incidents which have so long been shrouded in mystery, getting to know the real feeling of some of its chief figures and learning many facts which long have been withheld from the world. At last we are being placed in position to separate facts from fancies, to draw a line between truths and prejudices.

For some years, the American people have realized that they were subjected just before our entrance into and during the war to much publicity with little, if any, foundation in fact. It will be years and years before they will forget and forgive the manner in which they were victimized in this regard. Hundreds of untruths were uttered for the deception of both the public and the press, for much of the press of the land was victimized just as thoroughly as was the public. And for it all, there was little need, and therefore little excuse.

There were stories of horror and outrage held out as of common occurrence, when they were the rare exceptions, if ground there were for them at all. Then there were tales of destruction without justification. By word of mouth we were told about the destruction of at least a third of London and the razing of much of Paris. Readers will recall the tale of the treacherous destruction of the key parts of the machinery of the giant Vaderland at her dock in Hoboken, which caused such a wave of resentment, despite the assurance of several of our leading congressmen that it was absolutely false. The list was almost endless—the list of pure inventions of a publicity bureau without conscience—despite the fact that there were ample matters of truth to serve the purpose sought. In a word, there were so many horrors, real horrors, that there was absolute lack of need for the invention of fictitious ones, and yet the fictionists ground out their grists day after day.

And now, eight years after the war's close, an admiral of the British navy, Mark Kerr, comes forward with question regarding the warlike attitude of the former kaiser, to whose ambition the war has been ascribed.

Writing to the London Times this British officer quotes the former kaiser as holding to the view that even a victorious war would set back Germany a hundred years, and that there was little hope that Germany could win with Britain and her navy opposed to the Central powers. He gives his own conference with the former German emperor, and then quotes former United States Ambassador Henry White, who told him of the resentment of the high commanders of the Germany army because the German emperor was refusing to sign the mobilization orders and persisting in his logical objections to engaging his country in war. It was this delay and hesitation, von Falkenhayn, chief of the German general staff, angrily proclaimed responsible for Great Britain's entrance into the war, and at the time pointed out that "when they—the British—begin, they never quit."

Let us hope that this country may never again engage in another war, despite the hope of the pacificists to make her so supine that she will invite one, but if she does, let us hope once more that we never again will be subjected to such propaganda as that meted out to us in the last. We dread to think what the response to such propaganda might be. In fact, we dread to think what the reflex to the propaganda inflicted upon us in the last war may be should we ever be forced into another.

It's just a bit difficult to understand how the city government, which professes to have reduced the city debt $1,430,000 in thirty-five months, ever should have had the nerve to collect the occupational tax of 1924-25 or this year ask for increased appropriations.

Our esteem for the sex is so great that we feel impelled to state that no woman's taste should be judged solely upon her selection of Christmas ties for her husband.

The question whether to pronounce it Arkansas with the accent on the second syllable or as though it were spelled Arkansaw with accent on the first and a slight accent on the last syllable has been discussed so long that sometimes we are inclined to pronounce it "Impossible."

"The true Christian spirit," says the Ohio State Journal paragrapher, "is what not only would not be disappointed with a purple velvet smoking packet on Christmas morning, but would wear it afterward without apparent shame." There can be no question but what Mr. Ryder has described the Christian spirit at the zenith, but he's lamentably slow not to know that they call 'em radio jackets now.

A Splendid Edition.

The Lima Morning Star issued a beautiful sixty-page edition, Sunday, one section of which was in rotogravure. It showed splendid editing throughout, was replete with evidences of high-class editorial and reportorial ability, offered many excellent features and manifested in its advertising columns the esteem in which the Lima business, industrial and financial circles hold the Morning Star as an advertising medium.

We have noted the growth and development of many papers in the Ohio newspaper field, but none of them has shown progress so marked in so limited a time as has the Morning Star under the general management of our former fellow-townsman, W. D. Clark. It is a real pleasure to note the wonderful success which he has attained in so short a time in developing one of the best and brightest small city papers in the state.

Danger from Delay in Cancer.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

There is an organization known as the American Society for the Control of Cancer. At one of its recent meetings the president of the society said some things about cancer which I wish everybody might hear.

It is important that the public should be educated regarding cancer because it is one of the chief causes of death. More than this it is the chief cause of terrible suffering and pain.

The United States census returns show that of the deaths in every group of 100,000 persons, 100 are due to cancer. Twenty-five years ago the census report show only sixty-our out of every 100,000.

These figures would seem to indicate that cancer is twice as common today as it was a quarter of a century ago. I do not believe it is. The doctors of today are much more accurate in their diagnosis. Scientific progress has given them the means of deciding doubtful cases, an advantage which medical men of a generation ago did not possess. In consequence, cancer is more likely to be discovered and reported.

It must be admitted, however, that, gloss is over as we may, it appears to be a fact that cancer is on the increase. For its safety the public must be taught the things which will make this disease less to be dreaded.

To this end I quote President Taylor of the Society for the Control of Cancer:

"We teach that cancer is not hereditary, it is not contagious, and that, if taken in time, it is curable.

"Cancer of the breast one of the most common forms of cancer, is recognizable almost at its inception, and can nearly always be cured if operated on in time.

"Any nodule in the breast must be examined immediately by a competent physician.

"Our present greatest difficulty in treating cancer is that sufferers do not recognize the symptoms until too late.

"If patients would come to us in time, we could cure seventy-five per cent. At present, in most cases, we can only ease the pain and slightly prolong life."

These suggestions by Dr. Taylor should be listened to by everybody. Followed to the letter, this advice would save the lives of thousands upon thousands who will die in ignorance of it.

When you are in doubt about a symptom, whether it is a pain, a sore, a lump or a swelling, talk with your doctor about it. Early attention will relieve your mind if the symptom is of no consequence, and save your life if it is.

Poems That Live.

HAPPY INSENSIBILITY.

In a drear-nighted December,
Too happy, happy tree,
Thy branches ne'er remember
Their green felicity;
The north can not undo them
With a sleety whistle through them,
Nor frozen thawings glue them
From budding at the prime.

In a drear-nighted December,
Too happy, happy brook,
Thy bubblings ne're remember
Apollo's summer look;
But with a sweet forgetting
They stay their crystal fretting,
Never, never petting
About the frozen time.

Ah, would 'twere so with many
A gentle girl and boy!
But were there ever any
Writhed not at pass'd joy?
To know the change and feel it,
When there is none to heal it
Nor numb'd sense to steel it—
Was never said in rhyme.

The Way of the World.

By GROVE PATTERSON.

There was a man born blind, and he said: "I do not believe in the world of life and color. There is no sun, no moon, no stars. No one has seen these things."

All about us are men who have a certain practical ability to see—to get from place to place. Their eyes are apparently all right, yet they are blind. They can not see what other men with other vision can see. Hence they say it does not exist.

"There is no such thing as love and loyalty and virtue," they say, "because we have not seen them. There is no unselfishness. If there were we should see it."

They do not know that either they were born blind or they have become blind.

In order to believe in the goodness of other people, it is necessary that you have this emotion of goodness within yourself—and that you have it often enough to give it the substance of reality. If it is true for you it must be true for other men.

A certain United States senator used to boast he had never owned a dress suit and never would. He thought he was doing a smart trick. He thought he was making a hit with the folks back home. He was not a good psychologist. It is never a good investment to be artificially eccentric, to seek to be different, to exploit queerness. It never makes a lasting hit.

Most people like to see their friends—whether they are near-statesmen or just ordinary folks—do the right thing at the right time. Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt were none of them too good to wear the best clothes they had on the proper occasions.

The only really great men who seem to disregard the conventional customs of dress are those few who simply forget about such things. They are too busy elsewhere. The best we can do is defend their forgetfulness. We can not praise them.

Vauclain, head of the great Baldwin Locomotive works, was married when he was getting $8.40 a week. Suppose that is as much as $25 a week now. How many young men today have courage and self-reliance enough to get married and start housekeeping on $25 a week. Only those who have decided to make life a working course are likely to do that.

The best records are not usually made on life's smoothest, straightest roads. They are made over barriers that often at first seem insurmountable.

Maud Adams was a bashful girl. She shrank from appearing in public. By hard work she became the most beloved actress of her time.

Foch was a little-town boy. No especial chance for anything. He never stopped having faith and never stopped working. When the World war came he was nearly seventy—but he was prepared. He proved to be the greatest military genius since Napoleon.

Today's Worst Story.

BY WILL ROGERS

The schools are certainly teaching the kids a lot about brushing their teeth. Sometimes I think the little tykes don't spend so much time on two plus two as they used to, but they sure learn about toothbrushes and exercises and spinach. I don't know whether the kids actually use any of the toothbrushes or exercises or spinach, but they learn all about them anyhow.

There was a teacher in a country school out in Wisconsin that was awful hot on the next to godliness idea and she was always preaching to the youngsters about toothbrushes. One time she was telling the kinds that she was afraid some of them didn't carry out her teachings when they got home, and little Lottis Blossom pipes up and says:

"Well, we do at our house, anyhow. Why, when you first told us about toothbrushes, my pa went to town and bought one, and you bet he makes us all use it every day, too! Pa's awful strict thataway!"—Copyright, 1926.

Q. What causes spoilage of the top layers of sauerkraut? P. E. M.

A. Spoilage of the top layers of vegetables fermented in brine is sure to occur unless the scum which forms on the surface is frequently removed. This scum is made up of wild yeasts, molds and bacteria, which, if allowed to remain, attack and break down the vegetable beneath. They also weaken the acidity of the brine, in which way they may cause spoilage. The fact that the top layers have spoiled does not, however, mean that all in the container are spoiled.

Q. Why are storms more frequent at the time of the equinox? A. C. M.

A. The weather bureau says that there is no reason why storms should be more frequent or severe on September 21 or 22—autumnal equinox—than on September 10 or 11, say, or 29 or 30; nor, in fact, are they. The same is true of the spring or vernal equinox. This whole notion about "equinoctial" storms is erroneous, and it even is uncertain how, where, when or by whom, the idea was started. We only know that in one form or another it goes back at least to 1748.

Q. How old and how heavy should a steer be when the meat is at its best? How should the meat look? R. H. C.

A. It should weigh from 900 to 1,200 pounds, and should be between fourteen and twenty months old. The color of the meat should be light red flecked with fat. The color of the suet should be white with a slightly yellowish tinge.

ELKS' CHARITY MINSTREL SHOW WELL RECEIVED

Opening Performance Draws Approval of Large Audience at Grand Theater

Marion Lodge of Elks have put together another fine home talent offering for their annual Christmas charity minstrels. Catchy tunes, a good looking chorus, pleasing singers, well handled parts in the minstrels, clever specialty turns and a slap stick take off on a lodge initiation, which closes the show, all combined to give the first show audience a full two hours of fun and laughter at the opening last night.

A minstrel setting, with eight men in black face and two interlocutors furnishes the background for the opening. W. Dexter Hazen and Charley Underwood are the premier end men of this first scene, and their numbers marked the high spots of the first part. Hazen started out with "It Don't Do Nothing But Rain," switched this to a local parody in which the names of well known men in Marion figured and was called back time and again. Underwood gave "That Gal Belongs To Me" and had to take several encores and a lot of bows.

Singers Good

C. D. Shadaker, with his singing of "I'd Love To Meet That Old Sweetheart Of Mine" touched the high spot of the chorus solos. Other good songs given included Louis Slemmer and his "She Knows Her Onions", Aaron Goetting, "Gee, I Wish I Had My Old Gal Back Again", George Davis, with "Barcelone", Frank Butterworth with "Lazy River," Joe Neidhardt with "Susie's Feller", and "I Wish You Were Jealous of Me," by Robert Swisher.

The boys in black face, besides Hazen and Underwood were Carroll W. Davidson, Charles Snyder, George Davis, Louis Slemmer, Karl Koukle, John Vorhees, Charles Williams and Joseph F. Neidhardt.

R. E. Prettyman occupied the center seat of the minstrel ring, and called the turns of the first part by announcing the numbers as master of ceremonies. Interlocutors were Grant E. Mouser, Jr., and Jay Vaughan, and they interspersed the singing and dancing with some verbal fireworks with the various end men.

Best Chorus

The first part showed the best chorus of the production with eight girls doing some good steps. The girls in the opening number were Jerry Sammons, Mary Hager, Louise Foreman, Eleanor Williams, Althea Murphy, Bunnie Anderson, Marion Baker and Avonella Merchant. The Sunbeams were Mary O'Dowd, Helen Bryan, Thelma Clark and Trella Minard.

Choristers were James Starner, Wilfred McElhaney, Wallace Shadaker, Harry Huston, Ralph Green, Lowell O'Dowd and Marion Slagle.

The olio opened with a dancing turn by young Jack Griffith, who to the accompaniment of a fiddle, banjo and piano showed a lot of dancing ability for a youngster. The boy was dressed in overalls, cap and had a red bandana hanging from his hip pocket. He got a big hand.

More dancing followed, with Louise Foreman and Avonelle Merchant doing some fancy steps at the start and swinging into the Charleston for their encore. The girls were good.

Slemmer Makes Hit

Louis Slemmer, with his skit, "There, Their and They're," was next. Slemmer told the tragic story of a rabbit who drinks from a bubbling spring but is frightened away by a cruel hunter. The bubbling spring is in a pretty dell surrounded by three trees, and all the properties are shown in minature setting. The orchestra played a big part in this turn, Jack Raymond bringing up the music with a couple of bars each time Slemmer mentioned the spring, the rabbit, the hunter and the trees. The turn went over big.

Otto Miller and Jack Raymond then offered "The Present," furnishing a lot of laughs over the contents of two suitcases, each one opening a bag and displaying the contents, while Raymond discourses on the use of each present he intends to give his relatives.

Elks' Quartet

Wallace Shadaker sang "Hi Diddle Diddle" with the accompaniment of the chorus of girls, and the Elks' Quartet was encored several times for their singing of "Gypsy Sweetheart" and novelty numbers. C. D. Shadaker, George Schneider, Frank Butterworth and Dexter Hazen made up the quartet. Geraldine Sammons followed with the favorite, "The Red, Red Robin," and the chorus of girls. Jack Raymond then gave his piano turn, closing with a demonstration of clever dancing and playing at the same time.

The closing number of the olio was a take off on a lodge initiation, arranged by Charles Gano, entitled "Joining the Lion Tamers." George Davis as "Ham Gravey" and Joe Neidhart as "Sam Lucky" furnish the candidates for initiation, and the rest of the cast puts on the rough work of initiation.

For the grand finale the "Honeymoon Chorus" and the entire company appear and close the entertainment.

NEARLY 2,000 CROWS SHOT IN COUNTY IN 1926

Forty-One Hawks Brought Down by Farmers During Year

Crows of Marion County fought a losing battle with farmers during the last year. With a bounty of 25 cents for each crow shot farmers collected $196.25 from the county for their efforts in banging away at crows during the year.

The crow bounty is new in the state of Ohio. The legislature in 1925 passed a law authorizing commissioners of each county to set up a fund from which to reimburse farmers who shot crows and turned in the remains. Each crow is worth 25 cents when brought to the county auditor. The bounty is paid from the special fund set up by the commissioners.

A total of 1,985 crows bit the dust, or whatever crows do when shot, in Marion County during 1926, according to Earl Thomas, auditor-elect, who closed up the fund for the year today. Farmers have been bringing in crow scalps all summer and collecting their 25 cents for each one.

The statute passed by the legislature authorized the county commissioners to set up a fund not to exceed $100 for each township. The local commissioners created a fund of $750, and from this $195.25 has been drawn by farmers who went in for crow shooting during the summer.

Profitable Work

Crow shooting was profitable work, for aside from killing the birds who damaged crops and carried off poultry, the bounty in some cases proved handsome pay for a few minutes work. One farmer turned in 13 crows at one time, which he claimed he killed with just two shots. He admitted it was pure luck, as he took a pot shot at a flock, the largest, he said he had ever seen, and 13 birds fell. With shells costing about five cents apiece, this man cleared $3.15 on his shooting affray.

Hawks Fair Game

Hawks also are fair game for gunners, but the damage was much less among them than the crows. Also there are less hawks, but the bounty is higher. The township trustees pay $1 for the remains of any kind of hawk shot during the year.

Farmers have collected $41, for 41 hawks shot during the year from the township. This hawk bounty law goes back to 1919, when a fund was created in each township by act of the legislature, and farmers have been collecting every year. The township fund for hawks must not exceed $100.

GIVE UP HUNT IN CRYSTAL LAKE FOR BOY'S BODY

Officials Claim Further Dragging of Lake Useless: To Continue Watch

Search for the body of Carlton Virden, 18-year-old Business College student who is supposed to have committed suicide at Crystal Lake on Thursday, Dec. 2, came to a standstill today as city firemen and police and Sheriff Deal and his assistants, in charge of the hunt which has been in progress at the lake almost daily since the boy's disappearance, practically reached the conclusion that further efforts along this line would be unavailing.

All of yesterday Fire Chief T. J. McFarland and three of his men cruised over nearly all of the lake surface in a tow boat using drag lines and hooks in a futile attempt to locate the body. The work continued until late in the afternoon and by that time practically every foot of the lake bottom along the west, south and east banks was thoroughly dragged.

Dragging Useless

Chief McFarland today expressed the opinion that continued dragging operations would be useless and that about the only course to follow now is to wait for the body to rise to the surface in case no other means of finding it can be devised. Chief of Police Thompson and Sheriff Deal are of the same opinion.

In case the body actually is in the lake, it has probably lodged underneath one of the numerous ledges of rock along the sides, these officers believe. Even though the body may be dislodged, it might be several weeks before it reaches the surface, it is stated. Inquiry has shown that where water is extremely cold, as is the case at Crystal Lake at this time, progress of a body toward the top is very slow. In warm weather seasons, this rise is much more rapid, requiring on an average of from seven to 10 days.

Center Search

The search during the latter part of last week was centered at the northwest corner of the lake, where the boy's cap had been found. This section has been so thoroughly dragged, however, that officers are absolutely certain the body is not located there.

Yesterday the fire chief and his men threw a cap into the lake to ascertain whether it would drift any considerable distance. Carried by waves which moved in a northerly direction, the same condition which existed the day that young Virden is supposed to have taken his fatal plunge, the cap within a few hours had moved from the extreme south part of the lake to the north bank. This indicates, officers say, that the point where the boy's cap was found may been great distance from the place where he ended his life.

30 Feet Deep

Depth of the lake has been greatly overestimated, Chief McFarland stated today. It is not much more than 30 feet down at the deepest points, he asserts, the drag lines used by him and his men having reached bottom in all of the extensive area covered by the search yesterday.

The warm weather which prevailed Sunday and yesterday melted most of the ice which covered the lake during most of last week. Arrival of today's wintry wave is expected to result in the water freezing over again, however, and this will provide another obstacle to any attempts at continuing the hunt.

Living Loving

THIRTY ODD!

TWO of us recently went to call upon a third and mutual friend of long standing and many years' absence. Soon after our arrival there appeared upon the scene a young gentleman, quite obviously in his middle 'teens, taller by a head than any of us and with the respect-inspiring insignia of the athletically successful upon his sweater.

"My son!" declared our hostess proudly, exhibiting her progeny. "Don't you remember him? Well, no wonder. He has grown considerably since you last saw him!"

Certainly he had! Our last recollection was of a babe in a bassinet. The transformation that Time, unchecked, had wrought was startling, and this is putting it mildly.

"Isn't it dreadful!" sighed our friend when again we were alone. We nodded, for somehow and at once we grasped what she meant, even before she continued:

"I never realize how old I am until I come face to face with one of my once-upon-a-time playmate's infants, almost grown up. You and I, my dear, are both over thirty! Thin of it! Our youth in the background and middle age around the corner. Ugh! How I hate all that this means!"

Actually our friend moaned. On the spur of the moment we echoed her distress. Then suddenly we discovered that we were not feeling as badly as was she over the self-evident fact she had called to our attention. To tell the truth, we were not feeling badly at all. Our groan turned into a giggle.

"Over thirty and still going strong!" we remarked briskly. "Suppose we have left callow youth far in the rear. What of it?"

"Only that there were so many things I wanted to do that I left undone, and now it is too late to attempt them!"

WE noticed that our doleful friend said there were things she HAD wanted to do. We'll wager that upon due consideration, now, she would not crave many flapper pleasures and if she should what is there to keep her from them? It is never too ltae to begin anything worth while. And, after all, being "over thirty" does not number one among the ancients.

When we were very young our choices were based on the choice of other people. Now we eat what we eat, read what we read, dress as we dress and do as we do—because we want to.

Over thirty and glad of it?

We should say so! —F. S. Y.

Marion Lecture Recita Club Presents Progra

Mrs. Clara Turpen Grimes, of Dayton, soprano, and Morris Sager, Cleveland, violinist, together with members of the Lecture-Recital Club Chorus and the Junior Recital Club, were heard in one of the most pleasing musical programs of the year last night at the First Presbyterian Church. The concert was the season's offering of members of the Marion Lecture-Recital Club to music lovers of the city. Mrs. Harold K. Mouser is president of the club and Mrs. W. Watkins Johnson, director of the chorus. Accompanists were Mrs. Harry T. Williams, Miss Alfreda Horn and Miss Helen Bever.

While only a fair-sized audience heard the concert the lack of numbers was more than accounted for in appreciative enthusiams. Mrs. Grimes, who possesses a soprano voice, magnificant in tone and technique will not soon be forgotten by those who heard her sing. "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," from Handel's "Messiah." She interpreted her group of numbers with feeling and delightful individuality.

Blind Girl

Particularly interesting was the second number of the group, "The Bird with the Broken Wing," by Florence Golson, of Cincinnati. Miss Golson, who has been blind from birth, is a splendid musician and a few years ago took the state award for the composition of a chorus number with a solo part. She refers to her blindness as her handicap and this composition has been taken by her friends and admirers as the story telling of her own handicap. The number is dedicated to Helen Keller. Mrs. Grimes' other numbers were "Isle of Beauty," Watts and "God's Garden," Lemare.

Mr. Sager, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Sager, Oney-av, is a student at Cleveland Institute of Music, where he is recognized as a violinist of talent and ability. His solo number, "Concerto," Opus, 64, Second Movement, Mendelssohn, was particularly pleasing. Mr. Sager also was heard with Mrs. R. O. Bresler at the organ, Mrs. Helen Zuck Lacey at the piano, and Miss Clara Leffler, cello, in a delightful number, "The Shepherds at the Manger," M. Liszt.

Well-Balanced Bill

The numbers given by the club chorus were delightfully interpreted and arranged a charming complement to the well-balanced program. The numbers, which were presented in two groups included "Dreams in Twilight," R. H. Woodman and "Morning," Oley Speaks, and "God Is Love," Shelley" and "Praise Ye The Father," Gounod-Bliss.

Completing the program was two lovely organ numbers, "March Pontifical," Tombelle, which opened the program and "The Coming of the King," Dudley Buck, both played by Harry T. Williams.

Members of the Junior Le Recital Club, wearing vestments carrying lighted candles, formed a cession marching from the rear o church to the choir loft where they Christmas carols, which conclude program. A large illuminated cros ranged an impressive lighting effec the number.

Senior Club

Members of the Senior Club in Mrs. R. G. Williamson, Mrs. E Uhler Voorhees, Mrs. H. J. Mautz, J. W. Parland, Mrs. Carl Schell, E. D. Osborn, Mrs. John Oborn, L. C. Wogan, Mrs. Bertram D. M Mrs. George A. Gretser, Mrs. F Solander, Mrs. E. W. Warwick, Lillian Plack, Miss Crystal Orr, Alice Macken and Miss Dora Jacol

I promised to turn up early in September to work with two or three possible successors of Stephens. He told me that he planned to build our entire attack upon my triple menace, punting, end running and catching forward passes far down the field. There was no longer a chance to camouflage me; the game was to build up the strongest possible interference for my act. He had not decided whether to play me at end or bring me back as a halfback, going into the end on occasion.

After three days he departed to some house party or other, leaving me to my own resources. I had deposited my money and had no hesitation in drawing upon it so that I could live comfortably at a hotel. As I had no extravagant habits, I could afford to treat myself very well for awhile without making any great inroad upon my capital.

My presence in Boston got noised about, of course, and a reporter found me out and wormed an interview out of me regarding our prospects, which I made as rosy as possible. The interview bore unexpected fruit in the form of an invitation to visit Harry Breck at his summer home at Marblehead for ten days, to enjoy the festivities during the visit of the New York Yacht Club at that port.

During my service with the Abbotts, the life of the guests at the big summer cottage had seemed to me singularly delightful, which made an opportunity to indulge in it myself too attractive to be refused. Thus, four or five days later, I found myself shaking hands with Harry, who was one of our tackles of the past year, a graduate now, and being introduced to his father and mother. The Brecks had a bigger and finer house than the Abbotts; it seems that the primitive life is not so popular on the North Shore of Boston as it is on Cape Cod. It was a huge and gorgeous mansion and teemed with guests who included a dozen young and pretty girls.

Though my townsfolk at Hydeport hadn't thought anything of my football exploits, I assure you I was a lion at Marblehead. Dazzling girls fawned on upon me to assure me how they cheered me until they were hoarse and how they would pin their faith on me for the coming year. I was never introduced as Mr. Alden, it was "Bill Alden, the captain of Harvard, the hero of the Yale game," and the effect upon the person introduced was pretty near as complete as though they were being trotted up to the Prince of Wales.

When I went bathing, I had a flock of girls and young fellows swimming around me, like a school of seals around their king, if they have one. They admired my shoulders and my muscles in asides that I could not help but hear, and if I hadn't been three years older than the average collegian, and rather hard headed, I certainly would have swelled up like a poisoned toad. As it was I suppose I got a bit of swelled head. All I asked of life was that Rose Abbott could only see me with my court; what a revenge that would be.

One of the big events of the week was a gala ball at the yacht club. The way the girls at Breck's intrigued to be invited as my partner for the evening would have been delightful if my sense of humor didn't remind me that it was ephemeral glory; in a year I would graduate and a past captain of the football team isn't any better than the next fellow.

I settled the situation by inviting a seventeen year old sister of Harry Breck, which was the proper thing to do since he was my host. Even then I was assured by several lovely young things that they would pine away and die if I didn't come over for just one dance.

Of course I was hopelessly in love and very miserable, but I bore up under my sufferings very commendably under these delightful circumstances. Who wouldn't? I had collected a Tuxedo suit the previous winter, and I laid in tennis flannels, golfing clothes and sport suits when I found how much I needed them. I was considerable of a dub at tennis and a duffer at golf but I never lacked partners.

We went over from Breck's in three big utos to the yacht club for the dance, got there a trifle late and found the band already playing and the porch dotted with white dresses and the glowing points of cigarets, while inside a hundred couples were swirling about in a fox trot. Then I came in for a lot of instructions.

Captains of industry, who owned big yachts in the harbor, shook me cordially by the hand and tried to talk football with me. One man told me that I had won ten thousand dollars for him by my run of the previous season. A score of lovely girls whom I hadn't met were trotted up by reluctant escorts. I may as well admit that I was having the time of my life. Of course I couldn't remember their names and faces, but I wasn't expected to do so.

It happened that I was standing with my back against a post, chatting for a second with a wistful and languishing blonde, when I heard Harry Breck say to some one, a few feet in my rear:

"Quick, while there's a chance. I want you to meet Bill Alden, the captain of the Harvard Varsity. Hey, Bill, come here."

I turned obediently, and, smiling on the arm of Harry, was nobody in the whole wide world but Rose Abbott, so beautiful that she put out the lights of every girl there.

She was smiling when I turned but the smile faded, and a look of surprise and indignation came upon her countenance.

"This is my old team mate, the chap who saved the game," prattled Harry. I flushed to the roots of my hair and became completely tongue tied. If I had only known she was going to be here, but I supposed she was safe in Hydeport entertaining her own guests.

"You!" said Rose in a tone that told me something was going to break.

"Greatest fellow in the world," said Harry. "Prettiest girl in New York. Get acquainted." With this he abandoned us. Somebody stole my blonde and I couldn't make my escape. I just stood there and looked like a thief caught with stolen goods in his hands.

"What is the meaning of this masquerade?" she asked icily. "How dare you impose yourself on these people?"

"My name is William Alden," I mumbled.

"Do you mean to say that you are the football player? Why, you are my chauffeur. You've taken advantage of a similarity of names."

"If you consider a minute," I said quietly, "you'll realize that I couldn't deceive Harry Breck. He played on the team."

Rose then bit her lip and studied me with angry eyes.

"Then you are the Harvard Alden."

"Certainly."

"But I don't understand. You were a fisherman, and, and—what did you mean by concealing your identity and coming to work for my father?"

"I never concealed my identity. I went to work because I needed money."

"I suppose you considered yourself smart, pretending to be a servant and permitting us to patronize you. Probably you came to work for us to spy on my father and worm out the facts about that hotel site.

"You can think what you like," I said sullenly.

She seemed to ponder for a second and then she said slowly:

"I think you are the vilest and most despicable creature that ever crawled. I'm glad I told you all those things when you left. I'm glad I struck you. I wish it had been with a whip."

I winced and tried to think of something sufficiently bitter.

"Pdease remember that I didn't seek this introduction, Miss Abbott. Being fully informed of your opinion of me, I certainly would not have dreamed of seeking you out this evening. If it will do you any good, I'll go out with you to the stable. I know where there is a good whip, and, if it will make you feel any better, I'll put it in your hands."

"I'd love to give you what you deserve," she said wistfully.

"Come on." I led the way through the crowd and looking back saw that she was following me with a steady step.

Quicksands of Love

BY ADELE GARRISON

FINDS IT HARD

HUGH GRANTLAND'S involuntary and unintentional reference to that old obligation of Dicky's and mine to him for the rescue of our idolized baby from the hands of kidnapers, wiped out in an instant any faintest residue of resentment toward him for his strictures upon my friendship with Philip Veritzen.

Always I have considered that I owed him a debt which never could be paid adequately, and I hastened to assure him of this, hoping to remove from his face the look of horror with which he had realized that he had mentioned the obligation.

"Haven't I always called on you whenever I needed you?" I asked. "I should feel very bad, indeed, if I thought you were going away where I could not find you in an emergency. I always have felt so safe some way ever since that time Junior was kidnaped and you brought him back to me. I have felt that as long as you were in the world and I could call on you, no real harm could come to me."

Madge Speaks Kindly

His face kindled into joyousness.

"Then may I hope that you will not entirely shut me away from you, for the atrocious things I have said to you this afternoon?" he asked.

A sudden feminine temptation assailed me to tell him that not all of the things he had said were "atrocious" from a woman's standpoint, for surely no woman but would be touched and flattered by a declaration of devotion so selfless, so sincere as the one Hugh Grantland just had given me. But I had had my lesson. I had seen the barriers of years break with this old friend, and I had no desire to provoke any repitition of that outburst. But the knowledge of my secret feelings made my voice and words cordial, even tender.

"I should be more unhappy than you, if I shut so old and tried a friend out of my life," I told him. "To me it is as if this afternoon had never been. Suppose we forget all about it, and go back to our old pleasant and valued friendship."

Tete a Tete Ends Abruptly

He put out his hands to me with an involuntary gesture, and I, seeing that I need fear no further outburst from him, put mine into their clasp.

"If ever my life can serve you," he said with a little choke in his voice. "I want you to remember that it is yours. Shall we go back now?"

The last words were as abrupt, so different in intonation to the tender ones which had just preceded them, that I stared at him in amazement. He had released my hands, as he spoke, almost flung them from him in fact.

"There are limits to what a man can stand," he said hoarsely. "Your anger I can combat, but your tenderness robs me of all resolve to act sanely. Let us get out of here while I still have strength to keep from picking you up and running away with you to the ends of the earth."

I turned without a word and preceded him up the little path, and presently I found him beside me.

"The guards are up again," he said. "Please God they never will be lowered until you yourself shall bid me tell you what, until my death and beyond, I shall be holding in my heart for you."

Kenton Youth Victim of Accidental Shotgun Discharge

ARMS MANUAL DEMONSTRATION PROVES FATAL

Frank Cozart, 17, Instantly Killed When Falling Gun Explodes

Kenton, Dec. 14—While demonstrating the manual of arms to his two companions, Frank Cozart, 17, accidentally shot and killed himself here late Monday afternoon. The weapon, a repeating shotgun, slipped from the youth's hands and struck the ground, the force of the impact causing it to explode. The shot completely tore away the back of the youth's head, death being instantaneous.

Alvin Sowers and Addis Nichols, boyhood companions of the gun victim, told officials that they were returning from a hunting expedition when the tragedy occurred along the spur track leading from the Ohio Central Railroad to the S. Wayne-st. plant of the Kibbe Co.

"We three were walking abreast," Sowers told Patrolman John Brown, who investigated the shooting, "when Frank started showing us the manual of arms. He was taking the gun from his left shoulder and it fell from his hand. There was a loud report as he fell to the ground. Blood spattered everywhere."

Young Sowers is a member of Company E of the Ohio National Guard. According to his companions the trio left their homes on Letson-st shortly after the noon hourt to hunt. On their return they enjoyed sport in shooting rats in the city's dumping grounds near where the accident occurred. Many of this they started on home.

Sowers barely escaped being hit by the shot that snuffed out Cozart's life. While he ran for aid, Nichols kept watch over his fallen companion until the ambulance, a physician and a police squad arrived.

Fine details of the tragedy were learned when Patrolman John Brown questioned the two companions. Later they told the same story to newspapermen.

The mother, Mrs. Florence Newland, of this city, and one sister living in Kenton, survive. Funeral arrangements have not as yet been completed.

STAGE THRILLING LEAGUE BATTLE

Patsy's Patter

Gossip and Guesses in the World of Sport

By Pat Murphy

WITH Irish Meusel gone and Ross Young rated as a doubtful performer, for the present at least, John J. McGraw is giving most of his attention these days to the outfield which he must rely upon in the 1927 campaign. The outfield is now shaping up as the real problem in connection with the Giants of next season.

McGraw is hopeful of course, that Ross Young will be back on the job and able to play through the season. Any time Young is in good health that is sufficient to prevent any worries by McGraw in regard to the right field sector. But Young was ill early last season, and then, after a brief period in the lineup, he had to give up again and was out for the balance of the season.

Since that time McGraw has received most favorable reports concerning Young's condition.

As the outfield stands now, there is a marked absence of Giant veterans. Al Tyson and Heine Mueller come closest to certainties for places next year, and each made his Polo Grounds debut last season. Jimmy Johnston, who spent an occasional afternoon in the Giants' outfield last season, is no longer with the club.

Two newcomers who will face a grand opportunity to make New York their summer address are A. J. Reese, last season with Memphis, and E. L. Jeanes, who comes from Birmingham.

Reese was purchased just before the season closed, but an infected toe prevented him from getting a full tryout.

Jeanes came to the Giants in the draft. The latter was with the Washington Senators in 1926, but was sent back during the off season.

DANIEL HOWLEY, who will manage the St. Louis Browns for three years, likes "tough spots". He says so himself.

The declaration followed mention of the fact that he was encountering a "tough spot" in taking over the reins of the St. Louis aggregation from George Sisler.

"I wouldn't feel at home in a soft spot," the Irish pilot said. "I've had tough ones all my life."

He recounted his experiences with Montreal for four years, his management of Toronto in 1918 when the war took away all his players, and how, in 1926, there was not a single player who had been in Toronto uniform when he was appointed manager. Toronto won the International League race and then whipped Louisville.

Howley has had a varied career in baseball. Farmed out by Indianapolis to Grand Rapids, he helped that club win a pennant in 1909. The next four years he caught for the Hoosier team and helped them win a bunting in 1913. Ordered to Louisville in 1911, he refused to report and went to Utica. He was sold to Cleveland in 1912, was assigned to Portland and in 1913 was bought by the Phillies.

It was at that time, Howley said, that he realized that he was not destined for a big league catcher. He chose to manage a club.

Howley has several requisites for success on the diamond.

"You must have the players," he said. "The players must be in condition. The players must hustle and there must be harmony."

"Never humiliate a baseball player on the field," is another.

As to his method of operation, he prefers a tight defense and good pitching rather than concentration on slugging.

One practice session a day during the training season is a cardinal virtue of the Brown's leader.

"I believe in one practice session a day, but it must be a long drill, with the players hustling every minute of the time. When you try two sessions the noon hour and lunch break up the work and the afternoon session is worse than wasted."

Sport Shops Armed With Lineup of Stellar Cage Men, Ted Turney Included

Neither Team Has Yet Lost Game This Season; Isalies Out for Fourth Scalp of Year After Smacking Columbus Kinnears Last Week.

BY EDDIE SCHOENLEB
Sports Editor, The Star

ISALY DAIRIES will go after another scalp Wednesday night when they meet the Akron Sport Shops quintet of Akron on the Star Auditorium floor. The Dairies have won three games and have yet to suffer a defeat this season on the home floor and expect to keep up the good work.

The Sport Shops is one of the best teams in Akron—and that's a reputation in itself. The quintet has knocked off the Firestones on one occasion this year and expect to repeat the act several times before the season ends.

Isalies will again tangle with a set of cage stars when they face the Akron team Wednesday. The Shops consist of Ted Turney, Ray Schafer, Jack Wright, Miller of Akron U., Jenkins of Akron U., and McKloskey of the Firestones.

Ted Turney had the honor of being All-Ohio center last season during which time he captained the star Ohio Wesleyan quintet. He played three years of varsity basketball at Wesleyan and has been playing the game all this season on professional teams. He has been seen in action by many local fans.

Ray Schafer of Akron University and Jack Wright, of Mt. Vernon, are forwards on the Akron team. Schafer is known all over the state as a basket shot that can't be beat while Wright is said to have inherited some of the basketball qualities of his famous brother, Charlie, for two years All-Ohio forward and the best man that ever donned an Ohio University basketball suit.

More Stars

Miller and Jenkins, of Akron University, and McCloskey of the Firestones, will alternate at guard and are expected to do a good job of it. All three men are well-known in this district.

And facing this famous collection of stars from the basketball horizon, will be the same old Isaly Dairy crew with the same old fight. If Marion fans didn't know that they were supporting one of the best semi-pro cage teams in the state before last Thursday night, they certainly knew it after the locals took the Columbus Kinnears down a peg or two.

Newt Minard will start at center. Penry and Tschannen will hold down the forward positions. Bruz Robbins and Applegett will be seen at guard. The towering Miller of Purdue will break into the lineup before the half is over and K. O. Kunkler may get a chance in the tilt as will Phillians, another scrappy forward.

Battle Promised

Without a doubt, the Isaly quintet ranks among the best in the state—but so does the visiting team Wednesday. The result will be a battle, fast and furious.

The preliminary round Wednesday will feature the Midgets against the Bucyrus Shaws. The Marion Midgets have not yet lost a game and neither have the Shaws. Another exciting skirmish on its way. The first game begins at 7:15 with the second and main go being called at 8:15 prompt.

MANSFIELD SET FOR AKRON WEST

Tough Battle Expected When Two Teams Clash Friday

Mansfield High cagers are preparing for one of the toughest battles of the season, due Friday night, when Akron West invades the Richland County seat.

Fifteen men will be carried on the Mansfield squad this year but the starting lineup will likely consist of several well-known football stars of last season. At present we find Frank McMullen at backguard and Shipley hugging the running guard position. Martin plays center and Hall and Isaly hold down the forward positions.

McMullen last year was all league man for back guard. Shipley and Ed McMullen are fighting for the running guard post. Isaly at forward captains the team, while Hall and Martin are practically established with the Mansfield five this season.

Mansfield will open its North Central Ohio League schedule with Harding High, Jan. 14, on the Mansfield court.

GRID STARS GATHER

San Francisco, Dec. 14—Football players from far-flung sections were due to arrive in San Francisco today and tomorrow for a pair of games to be played here Saturday.

The Hawaiian All-Stars and the Haskell Indians, who will play each other, were scheduled to arrive today. Eruie Nevers' Duluth Eskimos, who meet a picked team from the San Francisco and Oakland professional football teams, will arrive tomorrow.

McRill's total, however, was high for the Cycles. He counted 592 points in the three games. Whipps, with 182, was high scorer for Richmans.

FIFTH ROUND OF VOLLEYBALL TO BE PLAYED

Exciting Contests Billed for Business Men's League

Those who crave action and excitement are assured of plenty of each Wednesday afternoon, when the fifth round of the Marion Business Men's Volleyball League gets under way at the Y. M. C. A.

With only three more rounds, including the one Wednesday, interest in volleyball is steadily growing. Last week during the Stief-Hill battle, the gym was packed with enthusiastic fans who made the hall ring with cheers for the two teams. More interest is being shown this year than during any other season, one of the captains declared a few days ago.

Hill Plays Waddell

Every game Wednesday promises to be full of pep, with the Hill and Waddell game at 5:15 on the upper floor attracting the most attention. Hill's team has not yet been defeated and is leading the league with four victories. Last week, the outfit knocked off Stief's crew. Roy Waddell's men have lost two and won two and are liable to do most anything against Hill's volleyballers.

Next in interest will be the Powell-Stief mix-up. Stief has only lost one game and still is a chief contender for the title while Powell has broken even with two and two so far this season and may spring a surprise Wednesday. The game will be played on the upper gym floor at 5:15.

Snare Meets Patton

And then the first game at 5:15 on the lower floor, when Patton's aggregation and Russell Snare's outfit tie up, promises more excitement. Snare is tied with Stief for second place, having lost only one game, suffering defeat at the hands of Stief's volleyballers. Patton has won only one game so far this season.

According to previous scores, Charlie Isaly and his men should have no trouble in trimming Dr. Frank Murphy's team in the 5:15 game on the lower floor. Isaly has broken even with two wins and a couple of defeats while Murphy is occupying the cellar position in the league with four defeats and no victories.

CARDS, PIRATES LOSE NET GAMES

Browns and Cubs Win in Second Shovel Round

Browns and Cubs came out on top last night in the first games of the second round of the Marion Steam Shovel Volleyball League. The Browns defeated the Cards 42 to 35 while the Cubs had little trouble in swamping the Pirates 38 to 21.

The games were played on the Steam Shovel gym floor and were witnessed by a large number of spectators who did not hesitate in showing their spirit.

The final games of the second round will take place Friday night on the Shovel gym with the Tigers meeting the Braves and the Giants mixing it with the Reds.

ACES PLAY MARTEL

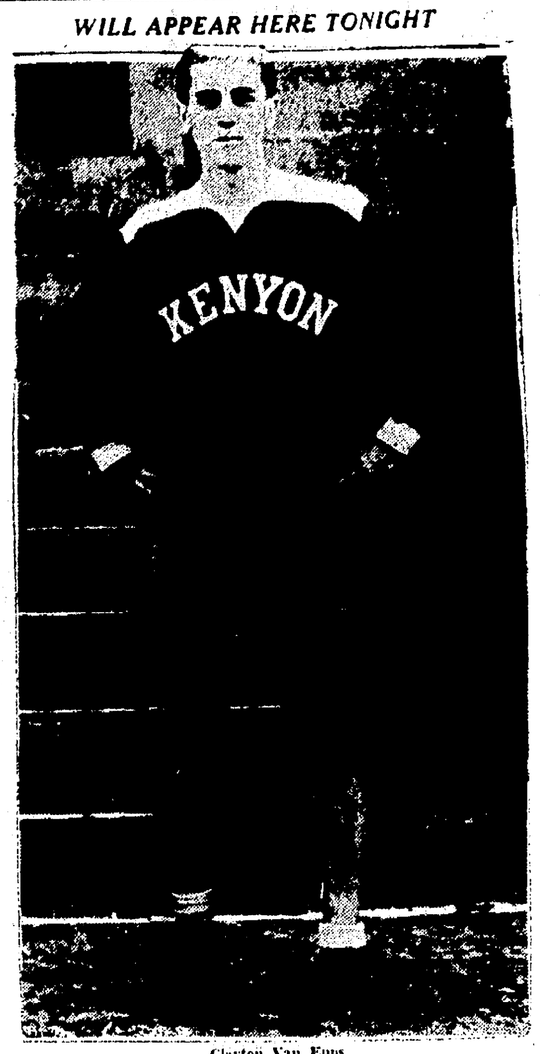
Will Meet Lion Tamers Thursday Night In Heated Contest

Marion East Side Aces will journey to Martel for a battle with the Martel Lion Tamers, Thursday night. The game with Boyd Furnitures of LaRue, scheduled for tonight, has been postponed until Dec. 23, Manager George Peadon announced today.

The Martel game promises plenty of action and fight. Both teams are natural rivals and are at their best when playing against each other on the court. The Lion Tamers will lineup with M. Kennedy and Reed, forwards; Clark, center, and G. Kennedy and Don Lyon, guards. The Aces will have Ainet and Sargent at forwards, Barton, center, and Gambol and Fisher, guards.

What makes you so fat. Three meals every day. Try two; then one.

WILL APPEAR HERE TONIGHT



Clayton Van Epps

This youth will lead the Kenyon College quintet against the Steam Shovel five here Tuesday night on the Shovel gym floor. In addition to being captain of the basketball team, Epps is also president of his class and of his fraternity, Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Kenyon College Quintet to Meet Shovels Tonight

Marion basketball fans are in for a treat if they visit the Marion Steam Shovel gym on W. Center-st at 8:15, tonight. At this hour the Shovel independent team will tangle with the stellar quintet from Kenyon College of Gambier, O.

Last week the Shovels suffered defeat at the hands of one of the leading teams in Ohio college basketball circles. Tonight, they will meet another leader.

The Shovels will be equipped with a lineup that should spell defeat for almost any kind of opposition. Bacon and Baldy Compton will be found at guards, Harry Schwab of the Cleveland Rosenblums and Fort Wayne will play center, and Roll of the University of Nebraska, with Bub Wilson of Mt. Gilead, will hold down the forward positions.

Kenyon College, which defeated Ohio Cranes at Bucyrus Saturday, the same team that goes under the Kinnears' name, will take the floor with another great lineup, with the captain, Clayton Van Epps of Bellevue, being the outstanding player. Van Epps fills the pivot position and has gained a reputation of being one of the best in Ohio college basketball.

Kenyon has not yet lost a game this season and will be determined to keep a clean record. The Shovels lost their first tilt to Ohio Wesleyan last week and will be out to avenge the defeat partly by handing the Kenyon crew a trimming.

The game will start promptly at 8:15 with the preliminary being furnished by two Steam Shovel League teams, starting at 7 o'clock.

Ray Detrick, coach of Ohio Wesleyan basketball squad, will referee the contest.

M'MULLEN AGAIN LEADS MANSFIELD

Frank McMullen, Mansfield High School captain and quarterback of this season's team, has been re-elected almost unanimously to continue in the position of captain for the school's 1927 squad.

McMullen is a junior this year and has won a letter for two seasons. He is without a doubt one of the greatest gridmen ever to don a Mansfield uniform, as all teams who took part in the N. C. O. League this year will give assurance.

HOWITZERS TAKE ANOTHER BATTLE

Win Hot Contest from Kappa Alpha Phi's, 23 to 16

Howitzer cagers continued their winning streak last night when they took a hot game off the fire with a 23 to 16 victory over the Kappa Alpha Phi quintet at the armory, following drill work.

It was the best game of the year for the Howitzers and incidentally was the first contest of the season for the Kappas. Both teams showed splendid team work but the guardsmen had a slight edge on landing the necessary points to win the tilt.

Boulton, with seven field goals, was credited with almost two-thirds of the Howitzer's points. Snyder at center for the Kappas played a good game and connected for four field goals.

Unqualified Indorsement And $10,000 Raise In Pay For Landis Regime, Claim

Action in Question, It Is Inferred, Will Not Be Taken Because Judge Is Loved for Himself Alone, but Because of Public Opinion, Says Walsh

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Dec. 14—Unqualified indorsement of the Landis regime and an advance in the judge's salary by a matter of $10,000 a year was the tip in circulation today on the outcome of the major league baseball meetings, starting simultaneously in New York and Chicago. The action in question, it was inferred, would not be taken because the judge was loved for himself, alone.

It was to be forced, they said, by fear of public opinion, which might become adverse in the event that the judge stood on his dignity and feet long enough to walk out on the deal. This would give the unfortunate impression of baseball being unable to tolerate a sincere regime.

LAST—UNQUALIFIED Endorsement—The nomination of the judge for another term of seven years at $60,000 a year is supposed to come from a National League owner. An American leaguer, it was said, would second the nomination and then there was to be nothing to it except to count the consenting vote of Phil Ball. Philip is a stubborn man to the death.

Publicly, he is the only club owner who is adverse to Landis. Privately and confidentially sub rosa there are several others in both leagues; at least up to and including the matter of Landis' arbitrary powers. The boys may not mind getting kicked into line on occasions but they object to paying for the privilege. However, it is understood that the league will not permit any weakening of its position by tampering with the present league agreement; so there seems to be nothing for it except for the boys to grin bravely through their tears.

The judge's contract seems to be the only matter of real moment to be considered, unless a few managers lose their self control and pull a deal or two out of the hat. A few of the possibilities have been aired during recent days but fumigation might have been over, at that.

However, there seems to be some reason for the belief that the Yankees and White Sox may do business over Aaron Ward during the Chicago meeting. The Yanks are said to have asked for Ted Lyons. The trade, if consummated, may be carried through on the basis of Ward and a pitcher for Hollis Thurston. On this end, the proposed deal of the Boston Braves for Bill Terry, of the Giants, may mature. The Giants are said to want Joe Genewich in return and it may be that they will get him. Brooklyn also has declared itself in favor of Burleigh Grimes' departure.

MT. GILEAD HIGH TO MEET ASHLEY TEAMS FRIDAY

Tilts Will Mark Opening of Purple Outfit's Home Schedule

Mt. Gilead, Dec. 14 — Mt. Gilead High School will take the lid off the local basketball schedule here Friday night when both the boys' and girls' team meet the Ashley High School teams. The games were originally scheduled for Saturday night, but by agreement were moved up to Friday night.

This will be the first game of the season for the boys. Only one veteran remains from last year's county champs, Captain Zolman, around which Coach Matheny must build his outfit. White and Makeever, who broke into many of last year's tilts will likely land regular berths this year. Among the most promising of the new crop of material from which Matheny will fill the remaining places are: Heltrey, J. Thompson, Nesbitt, Rhodebeck, Bee Stevens and Ralph Stevens

The largest girls' squad in the history of the school reports to practice. Much interest is being shown in girls' rules, adopted this year in Morrow county. While the girls who have been accustomed to playing boys' rules will find some difficulty in accustoming themselves to the new game, the new members are taking to them readily. The team, in spite of the defeat at the Mansfield Y. W., where they were outclassed, looks very good and should have a good season.

The games will begin at 7:30 o'clock at Levering Hall, where the home games will be played this year, on account of the inadequacy of the high school gym.

Mt. Gilead, Dec. 14—Harve Worline, a resident of Westfield township charged with assault and threatened breach of the peace was bound over to the Common Pleas Court yesterday by Mayor Kaufman. Shaw's small brother, it was stated, had formerly carried away a small sheep bell from Worline's place for which Worline sought to sue the child's mother. It is thought that this might have some effect as to the hostile reception received by Shaw.

11 JURYMEN TENTATIVELY SEATED IN CASE

Pretentious Legal Array Retained for Trial in Hardin County Court

Kenton, Dec. 14—Just prior to the noon recess today of the Hardin County Common Pleas Court, 11 veniremen had been tentatively selected for the jury that is to hear the Morey will contest case involving bequests amounting to approximately $55,000.

The task of seating a jury was resumed this morning and five veniremen were examined during the opening session of the day. One was permitted to remain with the group of ten tentatively seated during the two sessions Monday. It was expected that the jury would be completed this afternoon.

Of the special venire of 30 prospective jurymen drawn in addition to the 13 regular jurymen there were only 12 left at the completion of the morning session.

The case in which the will, written by the late Carl S. Morey, is being contested, will probably occupy the most of the week. Under the terms of the will the First Methodist Episcopal Church here was bequeathed between $45,000 and $50,000 for the construction of a memorial parsonage while the relatives received but a small legacy. Plaintiffs allege that the will is not the last will and testament of the deceased and that "undue influence" was used upon Morey at the time the will was written.

The most pretentious array of local legal talent to participate in a single local case for a number of years has been retained by the two sides in the issue. Representing the plaintiffs are Stillings and Johnson, H. D. Lease and Stickle and Cessna. The defense is represented by Mahon and Mahon and C. W. Faulkner.

COLORS CONTRASTED, SOFTLY BLENDED IN RECENT VOGUE

Central Press

Two colors smartly combined in numerous ways is a recent vogue. The colors may be strikingly contrasted or softly blended. But the way in which the two are used is always interesting.

The dress pictured achieves a futuristic effect in two shades of purple. Half the dress is made of the light shade and half of the dark, a scalloped effect being used, sleeves and all using the two shades. A narrow belt at the waistline and a silk flower of the blending shades on the right shoulder are the only additional bits of trimming.

A tight fitting turban of Austrian velour in dark purple with a row of buttons in front for trimming adds to the chic effect of the costume.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventures

BY JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

It was as cold as ever this morning when I let Jubilee down, and fine hard snow was blowing so that it made a fellow's face feel like it was being skinned. I was glad to get in the barn with the horse and cows. The horse had white frost on his whiskers but the cow's nose is as slippery as ever. She tried it on my face when I was setting down to milk her. I was glad to get done milking and get in the house where it was warm.

My grandfather said the wind made him think of one time when he went fishing in a wind like it and he caught a lot of fish and he held them by the tails and pointed their tails at the wind and the wind blew all their scales off, and then he held them by the tails with their open mouths in the wind and the wind turned them wrong side out, so that all he had to do to finish cleaning them was to scrape their insides off of their outsides.

When I was just finishing feeding my face Younise and Feeble came in and my mother said to me, "Darling, there is a piece of raisin pie in the pantry you can have if you want it," and I was just going to push my chair back and go and get it when Feeble said, "Oh, thank you! I love raisin pie!" And she went in the pantry and got it, and my mother did not know what to say, and my aut looked pleased and said, "Thomas Aristides, did you know your mouth was hanging open?" I shut it and did not say anything. When Feeble had eat the pie and we got outside she said to me, "That was a good joke on your mother, wasn't it?" I said "It sure was. I almost laughed myself to death." She thinks she is smart—and she is—kinda.

We all went down on the pond before school, and the wind was not so bad when we got down the hill, and we ran after Jubilee and the other dogs and got warmed up. The teacher kept her coat on in school and so did some of the girls. At recess we went down in the basement and Mush was out and his wife asted Nibs to put some coal on the furnace, and he raked the fire out and shoveled it in where the ashes belong, and when we got upstairs the room was cold and pretty soon Mush's wife came up and told on Nibs, and the teacher let us all go home except Nibs, and he came in the barn where I was milking and he said he had to set there and freeze half an hour after time for school to let out. He said the teacher's nose was sure red.

I took two flatirons and Jubilee to bed with me. He is a lucky dog.

Daily Bedtime Story

BY HOWARD GARIS

Uncle Wiggily and His Friends

Under the stairs in the hollow stump bungalow where Uncle Wiggily lived was a secret closet. Around Christmas time this closet was more secret than during the remainder of the year, and none of the forty 'leven little rabbit children (forty-twelve counting Baby Bunting) none of them was allowed to so much as go near this place under the stairs.

At other times during the year Jingle and Jangle, Tingle and Tangle and Buster and Custer might play in the secret closet as much as they pleased. Often they did, having such games in it as Pirate, Robber Baron and Charcoal, Charcoal Put Me in a Dark Hole.

But about two weeks before Christmas Uncle Wiggily, or Mrs. Uncle Wiggily, his wife, would lock the secret closet and they would say:

"Keep away from it now, my dears!"

You may be sure the rabbit children obeyed, though Baby Bunty, who was really only a visitor in Uncle Wiggily's bungalow—Baby Bunty used to say:

"What is in that closet that Uncle Wiggily doesn't want us to go near it? What is in it?"

"Hush!" Jangle would say.

"Don't dare even to peek through the keyhole!" warned Custer.

So Baby Bunty didn't, though she very much wondered.

What's that? Will I tel lyou what was in the secret closet? Excuse me, but certainly not! I wouldn't dream of such a thing! It is the secret of Uncle Wiggily and his wife, and—eh—

Tell you after Christmas? Oh, perhaps I might, or even on Christmas Eve. We shall see.

Anyhow, there was the closet under the stairs, and the door was locked, and whenever Baby Bunty passed it she walked on her tiptoes, wondering if she could hear any noise. But she never did, until one day. But let me tell it from the beginning.

Though none of the little bunny children were allowed to look into or go near the secret closet, Uncle Wiggily himself, or his wife, often opened the door at night, when the children were asleep, and peered within. Then the rabbit gentleman would say:

"I hope they will like them!" And his wife would say:

"Oh, they can't help it! They are just darling, I think!"

Now, tut, tut! There is no use asking me! I am not going to tell you the secret. But about Baby Bunty—Oh, yes. Well, one evening, when it was almost time to go to bed, Baby Bunty happened to be playing with a rubber ball. It pounced out of her paws and rolled toward the secret closet under the stairs.

Baby Bunty hopped after her toy and, picking it up near the door of the secret closet, the little rabbit girl heard a queer sound. It was a ticking, tocking sort of noise and at once Bunty ran to the other boys and girls and whispered:

"Oh, I know what's in the secret closet!"

"What?" asked Jingle.

"If you know you mustn't tell!" warned Jangle. "It is so near Christmas that we ought to be very good and not snoop."

"I wasn't snooping!" declared Bunty. "I was just getting my ball and I heard in the closet a noise like——".

But before Bunty could say what she heard, there was another sort of noise in the bungalow. It was a snarling, barking, growling sort of noise and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy cried:

"Oh, the Wolf is in! The Woozie Wolf is in! Somebody left the door open and the Wolf is in!"

Uncle Wiggily, who was reading his evening paper, rushed from the library with three jumps to drive the Wolf away. The bad chap was standing close to the secret closet and all of a sudden there came from it a loud banging noise: "Boom!" like that.

The little rabbit girl heard a queer sound

"Oh, there must be some soldiers in that closet with their guns and they are shooting at me!" howled the bad chap. "I came in to nibble some ears, but another time will do as well. I don't want to be shot!" And away ran the Wolf.

Uncle Wiggily went back to his paper never opening the closet door to see what made the booming noise. And when the little bunnies asked Baby Bunty if that was the noise she heard, she said:

"It's a secret closet and I'd better not say what kind of a noise I heard in it. But it wasn't that kind. It was more like——" And then, for fear it might slip out of her, Baby Bunty put her paws over her lips and all the little ones hopped up to bed. And if the letter man will bring home a piece of Swiss cheese full of holes for the goldfish to jump through, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily fixing the fire.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

No changes were reported in the markets today. The outlook is favorable for a small drop in the price of fruit for over the holidays, dealers claim.

Butter was unchanged and eggs were also holding to the prices of yesterday.

Christmas trees still are coming in strong and a large display may be found on the walks in front of the stores which handle them.

Potatoes which are selling from 45 to 50 cents a peck may take a slight drop after the first of the year, according to a local dealer's prediction. Meats and provisions are the same. Poultry is expected to make a little change tomorrow.

The demand for nuts this year is not as great as last, dealers say. This is believed by some merchants to be the cause of their fall in price.

A nice display of stuffed dates put up in five pound boxes at 20 cents a pound were found on the market today.

STOCK MART DOMINATED BY MOTOR ISSUES TODAY

Enthusiastic Bullish Traders Draw Lines Tightly Around Short Interests

MARKETS AT A GLANCE
Railroad stocks strong; industrial stocks strong; domestic bonds firm; foreign bonds irregular; call money five per cent; grain reactionary copper steady; oil steady; cotton steady; rubber steady; sugar steady; pig iron steady; foreign exchange irregular.

New York, Dec. 14—Motor stocks dominated the stock market today. Enthusiastic bullish traders drew the lines a little more tightly around the foundering short interest in the motor shares and the high-priced industrials and specialists, and the general level of prices advanced in the heaviest turnover in the current movement.

At certain periods the market resembled the "bull movement" in motor stocks in September-October of last year and June-to-September of this year.

The industrial developments of the day were favorable. A number of the well-known corporations reported a good increase in net earnings, in some cases emphasizing their reports with the declaration of new or extra dividends. The continuance of the 5 per cent call loan rate occasioned no surprise in view of the heavy treasury settlements at the banks tomorrow, while the buoyancy of the listed bond market was evidence aplenty of the large volume of investment funds available.

HARBORS BILL BEFORE SENATE FOR ENACTMENT

Measure To Be Given Right-of-Way Over All Other Legislation

Washington, Dec. 14—The new rivers and harbors bill, attacked by its foes as "pork barrel" legislation and defended by its friends as necessary for the development of inland transportation, came before the senate today for final enactment, following its passage by the house last spring.

The measure will be given right-of-way over all other legislation. This action was agreed upon by the senate before it adjourned last July and the agreement included a limitation of debate. Administration leaders predicted a final vote before the Christmas recess.

The measure, however, faces a stiff fight. It was attacked by three groups, the principal assault revolving around the item for deepening the channel of the Illinois River. This plan came under fire from representatives of virtually every other Great Lakes state on the ground that it would result in diversion of water from the Great Lakes into the Mississippi Valley.

Willis Leads Fight

Two other items, promoting dissensions, were the senate commerce committee's action in reducing an appropriation from $50,000,000 to $12,000,000 for improving the Missouri River from Kansas City to Sioux City, Iowa, and the inclusion of a $11,500,000 appropriation for purchase of the Cape Cod ship canal. The senate once rejected the latter appropriation.

The Illinois River item, appropriating $1,350,000 to build a channel nine feet deep and 200 feet wide, without any definite limit on diversion of water from the Great Lakes, will be fought by a senate bloc, led by Senator Willis, Republican, of Ohio. It will be defended by Senator Dineen, Republican, of Illinois, and Senator Jones, Republican, of Washington.

AIMEE'S RADIO OPERATOR WANTS HIS STATUS SET

Kenneth Ormiston Complains Officials Don't Seem To Want Him

Chicago, Dec 14—Kenneth G. Ormiston expressed anxiety today to have his status in the Aimee Semple McPherson case legally defined. Chafing under the uncertainty of delay, the former Angelus Temple radio operator, whose five months flight from a California indictment ended with his discovery in Harrisburg, Pa., a week ago, expressed himself eager for some sort of action on his case.

Following his discovery living under an assumed name in Harrisburg, Ormiston came to Chicago to confer with his attorney and "to await developments." He has not been arrested, but declared he is willing to surrender to the first officer presenting a fugitive warrant. He is under indictment in California for conspiracy to defeat justice in connection with the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnaping case. Now that his "exile" has terminated, he wants to be arrested and his case brought to a showdown. The showdown will be the fight to extradite him to California. Ormiston will resist that to the last ditch, he declares.

Ormiston brightened when he learned that District Attorney Asa Keyes, of Los Angeles had wired State's Attorney Crowe to arrest him, but when Crowe held off, Ormiston again showed his impatience.

"They don't seem to want me very bad," he complained.

Crowe did not indicate what action he will take on Keyes' request.

What the baby thinks: "It seems all that anybody expects of me is sleep and precious little of that."
